Gangsters Finish a Job. Make Your Vows a Movie. Reporting Is Easier. 8 Big Men.

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK GANGSTERS finished a job on Monday night. After the usual "ride" Frank Marlow, prize-fight promoter and all-around "racketeer," according to the police, was thrown from an automobile with shots in the temple, the jaw and the back—he died soon after the police picked him up.

Such killings are commonplace features of our interesting crime wave. The only unusual feature is the finding of a stab wound in the victim's side, partly healed.

An attempt to kill him about two weeks ago had failed. The killers returned to their job and finished it.

"Make a talking moving picture of each marriage.

"When a divorce is talked of later, make the husband and wife listen to their voices making solemn vows of eternal fidelity, 'til death do us part."

The judge thinks that would touch their hearts and make man and wife say, "No, we don't want any divorce."

It might perhaps, but not certainly.

There are men and women, too, that cannot even bear to think of those vows, much less to hear them over again, especially when they were made without reflection.

An Associated Press reporter, flying through the clouds above New Jersey yesterday, talked by transatlantic wireless telephone to Miss Dairymple of the Associated Press staff in London.

That's an improvement on old days when Bogart was city editor, and Charles A. Dana boss editor of the New York Sun and the Pennsylvania ferry house burned down across the river from Cortlandt st.

A Sun reporter had to cross on ferry to Hoboken, run all the way to the Pennsylvania ferry in Jersey City to get the facts, and run all the way back to Hoboken. No taxis, no electric street cars, no telephones or wireless.

Different, also, was the day when Carvalho, a young Sun reporter, went out to find a big negro murderer, found him, cornered and covered him with a gun in a Long Island church, and had to walk him several miles to a lock-up.

Reporting is easier in these days.

The big eight and the Secretary of the Treasury will administer funds for farm relief, spending the people's money as intelligently as they know how.

How can you tell "a big man" when you see him, and how can you be sure that your big man understands farm problems?

It would be interesting to put the eight big men, after they are chosen, in charge of some typical American farm to see what they would make of it.

LINK TWO MEN HERE WITH BEER KILLING

With Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, of Charlestown, Edward M. Lewis of Brookline and three others held in New York, police of Boston began today a search for two other Hub men in connection with the murder of Frank Marlow, racketeer.

Meanwhile two New York detectives, Thomas Caputo and David Daly, were rushing toward Boston and it was understood they wished to be in on the grilling if the sought-for pair are apprehended.

One of the two sought for questioning is a man who, a number of months ago, was acquitted of a murder charge in connection with a local liquor war.

This man, according to Police Sergt. William J. Harrow of Capt Livingston's flying squadron, was seen leaving a Tremont st. restaurant Saturday or Sunday night in company with Johnny Wilson.

During the same evening, Marlow was seen riding around Boston in an automobile, in company with several men.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., First Lieutenant

Washington, June 26 (AP)—It is now First Lieutenant Herbert Hoover, Jr. The son of the President today was given that rank in the specialist reserve of the army.

The name of the son of the President moved through the machinery of the war department in the usual way and the appointment was announced along with 500 others.

PORTO RICO PROTEST ON SUGAR

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The tariff duties to be imposed upon sugar and hides, commodities affecting every household and each individual, were taken up for consideration today by sub-committees of the Senate finance committee.

Rates to be placed on these articles precipitated a storm of controversy when the tariff measure was before the House and the disputed now has been transferred to the Senate, where arguments pro and con again are being heard.

The hides schedule was taken up unexpectedly today to hear two witnesses who have asked to be heard and the first of these, F. E. Mollin of Denver, Col., urged that the rate of 10 per cent ad valorem, proposed by the House measure, be retained.

PORTO RICO PROTEST

Before another sub-committee, Frank A. Dillingham of New Jersey, representing the Association of Sugar Producers of Porto Rico, headed the long list of those waiting to discuss sugar duties. He described as prohibitive as far as the island was concerned the increase from 61 to 80 a ton on Continued on Page 2, Column 2.

26 CALLED BY GRAND JURORS

The federal Grand Jury today began an investigation of the workings of the Imperial Lottery, a Treasury ticket pool with headquarters in Springfield, said to do a business of more than $1,000,000 a year.

The investigation is the result of raids made on the lottery headquarters by Department of Justice men on June 6 and 17 following complaints from Pittsfield and East Providence residents that prizes which they won were not paid.

Twenty six witnesses were ready to testify from New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Pittsfield, Providence, Springfield and cities and towns in Greater Boston.

According to federal authorities, the pool started in Connecticut in February of 1926 with receipts of $2000 per week, and in December of the same year its receipts totalled $56,000 weekly. This increase has been maintained steadily, the federal men claim, the maximum weekly prizes advertised as being $30,000 and the maximum individual prize $3000.

Department of Justice agents said the pay-off was on a mixed type of play, anyone driving the five winning numbers, no matter in what order, receiving a prize, but that there were several first prize winners at times.

The alleged head of the pool is a resident of Longmeadow, it is said, and he has agents in practically all large cities in this state, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Leviathan Will Dry Dock in Boston

Reports that the steamship Leviathan would not come to Boston again for her semiannual drydocking prove to be entirely without foundation. The big liner will come here next month, arriving about July 17 and remaining for six days. Her customary underwater survey and painting will be done and the usual drills will be drawn for inspection. This will be the first visit of the steamer to Boston since her sale to the Chapman interests.

F. A. Merrick Heads Westinghouse Co.

New York, June 26 (AP)—F. A. Merrick, who has been vice-president and general manager of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., was made president of the corporation at a meeting of the directors today. He succeeds E. M. Herr, who, after an extended vacation, will become vice-chairman of the board.

MASS SATURDAY IN MEXICO

Mexico City, June 26 (AP)—Procedure for turning churches back to the Roman Catholic priests was announced by the government today. Archbishop Ruiz, apostolic delegate, in an accompanying statement said 15 Mexico City churches would be ready for opening services this week, with the first masses probably Saturday.

The government announcement said in every case the archbishop would designate the priests in whose hands a church was to be placed. Then the priest, accompanied by 10 parishioners, Mexican Catholics, will interview the present custodians committee, who will hand over their inventory to the priest and parishioners.

If the inventory shows everything in order the parishioners will notify the municipal authorities of their readiness to accept the property and the priest will produce his birth certificate, showing him Mexican-born in compliance with the law. The priest will then be registered by the municipal authorities, representatives of the treasury and interior departments witnessing both inventories and actual delivery of the churches.

Mayor McGrath to Quit Hospital Today

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath of Quincy was to leave the Quincy City Hospital today, where he has been for a month. He was operated on for stomach ailments and immediately following his condition became critical and remained so for several days.

It will be some time, however, before the mayor will be able to resume his official duties at the City Hall.

King George Makes Labor Man a Baron

London, June 25 (AP)—The Official Gazette announces today that King George has conferred the dignity of a peerage on the veteran labor leader, Sidney Webb. He will assume the title of Baron Passfield of Passfield Corner. Passfield Corner is his country residence in Southampton.

GALVIN DENIES PROPOSAL

Joseph P. Galvin, Arlington shoe manufacturer, defendant in a $25,000 breach of promise case brought by Miss Anna Gibbons of the Back Bay, took the stand today, denied charges she made and said he was too drunk at the time to realize what was happening.

Third Fiend Victim Names Torch Man

The identity of the fiend who tried to burn a Cambridge schoolteacher and beat a Beak Bay girl, injuring her, perhaps fatally, was disclosed to State police today by a third young woman, who had suffered at his hands, but had never reported the assault.

The authorities said they would not make known the name of the third victim who was attacked on the same lonely Weston road, where Alice M. Groden, 24, of Cambridge, and Mary Faramino of Audubon rd. escaped with their lives, the former with gasoline-soaked clothing and both fearfully beaten.

Shortly after the third girl named the man sought, police combed Newton, Arlington and Cambridge for the assailant. He is said to be an automobile salesman.

BABY KIDNAPED; FEAR TONG WAR

Police feared a tong war in Boston today as a result of the kidnaping of six-months-old Columbia Chin, daughter of Harry Chin, Hep Sing Tong leader.

The baby was snatched from its carriage in front of 596 Massachusetts ave., South End, during the five-minute absence of the mother.

Mrs. Chin was making a call at that address, and police believe the kidnapers had been trailing her and the child.

Police details were rushed into Chinatown to search for the missing infant, and also, to prevent any clash between the two tongs.

File Writ to Release 'Scarface Al' Capone

Philadelphia, June 26 (AP)—A petition for a writ of error was filed in municipal court today to have "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago gangster, released from jail where he is serving a one-year's sentence for carrying a loaded pistol. A hearing will be held Saturday before Judge John E. Walsh, who sentenced Capone and his bodyguard, Frank Kline, who is not included in the attempt to free Capone.

Copperhead Bites Girl; May Be Fatal

Easton, Pa., June 26—Miss Irene Suess, while walking near Water Gap, felt a sudden pain just above her ankle. Looking down she saw blood trickling and called her companions. They found a copperhead snake and killed the reptile. Miss Suess was removed to the hospital and anti-snake bite serum was administered. Her condition is serious.

HUNDREDS SEE PLANE PILOT BURN TO DEATH

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—One man was burned to death and another was critically injured today, when their plane turned over in landing and caught fire. The pilot, who was burned to death, was believed to be Francis Phillips, son of the late sewer king. He was held by his safety belt, while a crowd of two or three hundred people looked on helpless. The passenger gasped out that his name was "Honey Goldsmith."

'DOUBLE CROSS' HINTED IN HIS PART IN BEER GAME LATER

Suffolk Superior Court for murder Marlow came on to the Hub from New York with a fund of $65,000 to be used in defraying expenses of the accused man's defense.

Since then, according to the story in New York, Marlow had attempted to squeeze into the "liquor racket" of the gang with whom the acquitted man was affiliated.

The probability that he succeeded in invading the Greater-Boston field was indicated today when it was learned that Philadelphia beer, one of the "Marlow stocks," is being sold in several shore resorts near the Hub.

It became known also today that Marlow and Wilson, together with Michael Rocco ("Mickey the Wise Guy"), of the West End, bought "pieces" of the recent Irish Fair at the Boston Garden, which was somewhat of a failure.

Rocco is understood to have invested $1500, Marlow $500 and Wilson $250.

Lewis Held in $50,000 as a Material Witness

In Queens County Court, Long Island City, L. I., Lewis was held today in $50,000 bail as a material witness in connection with the slaying.

He appeared in court dressed in Broadway style, with light gray suit pressed to a razor edge crease, with bright tan shoes and natty Panama hat.

Before bail was fixed, Judge Adel asked Lewis, a stocky man about 45 years old and with gray hair, if there was any reason why he should not be held as a witness.

"I gave myself up voluntarily," Lewis replied.

"The district attorney says you were with Marlow until 45 minutes before he was killed," the court said. "Is that right?"

"Yes," Lewis replied calmly, "I was with him all day long, until just before he was shot."

"What do you do for a living?"

Lewis smiled and shrugged his shoulders. "I have a lot of interests," he said, "but no particular vocation."

For eight hours Lewis, Wilson and the three others held, one of them a girl, were grilled in connection with the case, and out of the grilling came a declaration that District Attorney Newcombe of New York would swear out warrants against two men, charging them with the murder.

Police Commissioner Whalen of New York personally directed the grilling of the two Boston men and their three companions, and the eight-hour quiz convinced the commissioner, he said, that Marlow was "taken for a ride" because of a horse race tip that went awry.

Lewis is 40 years old and married. He lives in Babcock st., Brookline, and is declared to be connected with a Stuart st. shop in Boston.

Those under arrest in New York, in addition to Lewis and Johnny Wilson, who was part owner with Marlow, of The Rendezvous, a night club, included:

Al Sieger, dancer, of Coney Island; Ignatius Coppa, proprietor of a West 52d st. restaurant, where Marlow lined just before his death, and Miss Mary Seiden of Coney Island.

According to Commissioner Whalen, Lewis arrived in New York from the Hub on June 16 on a "mysterious mission," shared a hotel room at Coney Island with Siegel and checked out with Siegel last Monday morning.

LEWIS LOST ON RACES.

These two, with Wilson, Siegel and Miss Seiden, went to the track in a car alleged to have been driven by Coppa, although Coppa denies having been a member of the party.

Commissioner Whalen asserted that after dropping the $2700 "Boston Loop" left the track. Yesterday Lewis, according to the police head, received a money order for $3500 from Boston and divided the money between two men, afterward being unable to give a satisfactory explanation.

Betty "Mickey" Farley, 19, and Billie Burke, her roommate, night club hostess, were released from custody today after long questioning regarding their associations with Marlow.

Not more than a week ago Boston police observed a close associate of Marlow's in conference with a Boston gunman in a Tremont st. restaurant. Later this man with some of his pals, made a mysterious trip to New York and has not been seen in Boston since.

Fear of Death Shadowed Gangster Constantly

Boston "girl friends" of Marlow will be grilled by police today in the hope that he may have mentioned the names of those whom he had reason to fear.

Both New York and Boston police know that prior to his death he lived in constant fear that he would be "bumped off."

Although Dolores Farris, beautiful blonde actress who played in the "Good News" Co. in Boston a few months ago was reported to have been with Marlow in Boston less than a week ago, this report was put down by a despatch from London telling of her collapse on hearing news of Marlow's death.

No London paper carried the story of Marlow's slaying and it was told her by a friend who obtained the information from a news agency.

A physician was summoned for the girl and, after understudy was hurriedly summoned to go on in her place.

When she became more composed, Miss Farris was shown the news tape detailing the story of Marlow's slaying.

"It must be wrong," she sobbed. "I can't believe anyone would kill Frank. I know it's not so. Frank was a square-shooter and not mixed up with the gangs.

"We were to become engaged as soon as I finished with the show in London. He's the only man I ever loved. I can never love another. He's the squarest man I ever met."

A mysterious knife wound on the groin, which Marlow told inquisitive friends with sardonic humor, "I cut myself while shaving," was noticed during his last visit to Boston. They'll get no aid to get me good, pretty soon, unless I'm careful," the slain racketeer is reported to have told Roy Vardon, a friend.

"I know I'm going to get bumped off one of these days—and it won't be long now. I'm on my last heels now and starting to crowd me," he stated with a sardonic smile.

Vardon said he just laughed at Marlow and set it down to sadistic humor.

Had $30,000 on Person During Boston Visit

Monday night Marlow was standing on 47th and 48th sts. New York, talking to two fight promoters but his eyes wandered and he seemed nervous. A black sedan, with three men in the rear seat and a young man at the wheel pulled up.

"Hello, Frank," a voice called from inside the car as the door opened half way.

Seemingly startled, Marlow entered without a wave or a word to the men he was talking with and the car rolled away.

"You'd think some guy had a gun pressed against Frank's chest, he moved so fast," one of the men said.

About one hour and 15 minutes later, the body of the racketeer, riddled with bullets, was left on the Queens roadside.

At a North End restaurant, where he held his reception headquarters in Boston, Marlow never sat within range of a door or window.

He would survey his friends for any bulge that might conceal a weapon as he greeted them.

Known to have $30,000 or more in cash in his pockets at one time, which he gave to the clerk in the exclusive hotel where he stopped, to keep for him, Marlow had no bodyguard, but was always armed.

All that was found in his immediate possession was $16 in cash, a pawn ticket for a $1800 ring, manageraship papers of two pugilists and a $10,000 insurance policy, in which Dolores Farris is named beneficiary.

The slaying has an intimate tieup, police believe, with the three unsolved slayings in New York, Rothstein Jerge and Yale, also big scale racketeers.

Marlow was known to be a henchman of Yale's, a friend of Rothstein's and an acquaintance of Jerge police say.

After the gambler's bullet-ridden body was found outside the Queens Cemetery a telephone call was made to Marlowe's suite, No. 1511, in the Hotel Victoria. The answer came:

"Frank isn't in yet. I expect him any minute. This is Mickey—Mickey of the Rendezvous."

At the Rendezvous detectives learned that a young entertainer, Betty Farley, was known as "Mickey" to her friends. At her apartment in 345 55th st. they discovered the girl with Phyllis Burke, known as "Billy" on occasion. At first, Miss Farley denied having been near the Hotel Victoria or knowing the slain man.

GIRL AND WIFE MOURN MARLOW

DOLORES FARRIS JOHNNY WILSON

FRANK MARLOW MRS. FRANK MARLOW

Dolores Farris (International Newsreel photo), American actress playing in London, collapsed on stage when informed of the killing of Frank Marlow in New York. She is revealed as a $10,000 beneficiary in his life insurance policy. Marlow's wife in New York appeared at district attorney's office apparently unaware of the interest in the slain man by the actress. Marlow's photo is by Associated Press.

Johnny Wilson is held without bail with four others, including one woman as a material witness in the Marlow slaying. International Newsreel photo shows at police headquarters Betty "Mickey" Farley and her apartment companion, Myrtle "Billie" Burke, who were grilled about a mysterious telephone call from a Riverside drive apartment, but were released early today.

Jailed for Year Under Jones Law

Montpelier, Vt., June 26—William Cushion of Waterbury was sentenced by Judge Harland B. Howe to serve a year and a day in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Cushion had been found guilty of possessing and selling liquor by a jury.

Henry Maloney of Waterbury, another of the five who pleaded not guilty to a similar charge, following raids that took place in this community by prohibition officers, was given a like sentence. These two are of 26, who pleaded not guilty to violating the Jones Act.

Roxbury Man Made Assistant Auditor

Richard D. Cleary of 52 Alleghany st., Parker Hill, Roxbury, has been appointed assistant city auditor of Boston following a noncompetitive examination conducted by the State Civil Service Commission. It was said that this was the first time an examination was ever held for the position.

Mr. Cleary succeeds Henry Keenan of Dorchester, who has been assistant city auditor since 1925. Mr. Keenan was retired a few weeks ago after having been a city employe since 1886.

Pick Six Colleges for Air Research

New York, June 26 (INS)—The aeronautical chamber of commerce announced today that six American universities equipped for research in aeronautical engineering have been selected to test commercial airplanes in accordance with a new code of procedure on standard performance.

The six universities are New York university, the University of Michigan, Purdue university, Stanford, the University of Washington and California Institute of Technology.

The new code is expected to provide manufacturers with a standard basis upon which to compute the speed, rate of climb, ceiling, landing speed and other performance.

FATHER GREETS AIR STOWAWAY

New York, June 26 (AP)—The stowaway of the Yellow Bird, Arthur Schreiber of Portland, Me., returned to America aboard the Leviathan today—first class—attired in extreme cut French clothes, but with little to say about himself or his trip.

He was met at Quarantine by his father, Morris Schreiber, a Portland fur worker, with whom he exchanged affectionate greetings and then he posed, with his father and by himself, for several photographs.

The youth had nothing to say about his future plans; all he wished now, he said, was to get back home to Portland and see his mother.

Death Car Driver Held for Grand Jury

Lewiston, Me., June 26—Lanie J. Berube, 23, driver of the truck which killed George R. King, president and treasurer of the Low-King Co. of this city June 17, was held under $3000 bonds for the October grand jury in Lewiston Municipal Court on a charge of manslaughter.

Death Brings Marlow, the Beau, Back to His Humble Wife

New York, June 26 (INS)—Frank Marlow, the man who loved many dazzling women, has come home in death to the humble little woman who loved him most of all.

Minnie Curto weeps beside the body of her slain husband. Although she is poverty-stricken, she will spend her last cent to give him proper burial.

Two dark-eyed little girls stand close to her in their shabby apartment, not quite realizing what has happened to their daddy. They don't understand the expression "Taken for a ride." They've never heard of a "racketeer."

Minnie Curto, who never changed her name to Marlow, always found excuses for her handsome husband, Frank, when stories came to her of his wild life with other women.

She found quick excuses for him today when someone told her he has betrayed her beyond the grave by leaving his insurance to his Broadway favorite, the little blonde toe dancer, Dolores Farris.

"I don't believe it," she said fiercely. "Of course, I realize that Frank had other women friends. He led a sporting life, and naturally he came in contact with show people and plenty of women. But he didn't love them." Her tone was almost hysterical.

Someone told her her husband had spent on chorus girls sums fabulous in comparison with her "$200 or $300," that he had at various times been worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. But she would not believe them. She is faithful unto the end.

She said she and the children are penniless, because she has been unable to work for the last two months, since breaking her arm. She still hopes that something will turn up, proving that Frank has provided for her and the children.

ARRAIGN 2 BOSTON DOCTORS

Dr. Joshua E. Quincy of Boston and Dr. Harold Bowditch of Brookline were arraigned in Providence district court today charged with practicing medicine illegally in Rhode Island.

Both pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued for trial, Dr. Quincy's to August 2 and Dr. Bowditch's to July 26.

The proceedings resulted from a controversy between the state board of health and the national health bureau of Providence, of which Dr. William R. P. Emerson, professor of Tufts Medical School, is the head. A warrant was also issued for the arrest of Dr. Emerson.

The state contends the health bureau violated the laws of medical practice by diagnosing the physical condition of its clients without being licensed in Rhode Island. The defense made was that diagnosis and recommendations that patients visit their own physicians were preventative work.

FIND 3D TORCH FIEND VICTIM

State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neill, in possession of the identity of the man sought, did not leave Boston, as intended, to interview Miss Gordon, who has been taken by her parents to a Maine summer resort to convalesce from her injuries.

HAD OTHER VICTIMS?

The condition of Miss Faramian continued serious today and physicians asserted that if she recovers she will be permanently crippled.

The disclosure of a third victim of the torch fiend convinces police, they declare, that other girls, perhaps a large number, have suffered by chance acquaintance with the man they seek and that it is not impossible that one may have been the victim of murder.

Only a scream saved Miss Groden from being burned to death when her assailant lit a match to ignite her gasoline-drenched body. Believing her still unconscious, the man was startled and dropped the match and she managed to escape.

IS DANGEROUS KILLER

The man sought is far more dangerous an individual than a person who has committed a murder under provocation, police point out.

He is utterly ruthless and his cruelty is masked beneath a veneer of cordiality, well chosen words and an attractive personality until such time as he decides to drop the mask.

With the identity of the assailant in their possession, police believe his arrest is only a matter of hours, but point out that during the hue and cry raised over his crimes he has doubtlessly fled his usual haunts.

Find Man Dead After "Ride"

Chicago, June 26 (INS)—The body of a man who had been "taken for a ride" and perhaps tortured, was found in a strawberry patch near Crete, a suburb, today. The victim's skull had been crushed. A leather belt was wound tightly around the throat.

SUGAR TARIFF PROTESTED

sugar cane as recommended by the House measure.

Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, chairman of the sub-committee, said he had information that one Porto Rican factory had made $340,000 in profit in one year by importing Santo Domingo cane at $1 a ton and shipping its raw products free to the United States.

American capital in Porto Rico, he added, should not have such an advantage over domestic producers and contended the House rates should correct the situation.

PREDICTS RUIN

Dillingham favored the rate of 2.40 on raw sugar from Cuba as against 1.76 now, but said in answer to questions that if it were applied to Porto Rico, from which sugar is allowed free entry, the sugar industries there would be ruined.

Porto Rican sugar production, one-third of which is controlled by Americans, the witness said, is selling at New York at $4 a ton less, adding that every one of the Island's 14 factories had lost money this year.

At the other committee hearing, Mollin said every stock raiser and dairy farmer would feel the benefit of the duty immediately," arguing that hides were a "small item in the price of shoes."

Higher prices, he said, would help the agricultural industry generally.

He asked for a specific duty in place of the ad valorem rate, asserting hides imported from every country in the world and declaring that the latter duty would "mean nothing."

He also urged a duty of 6 cents a pound on green hides and 10 cents on those cured or dried.

In further testimony before the sugar sub-committee, Dillingham said the 20 per cent preference granted Cuba was equivalent to a bonus of $30,000,000 to Cuba on last year's crop.

He declared he would not place a limitation on Porto Rican and Hawaiian free duty imports into the United States.

BOSTON MAN APPEARS.

"Then it all depends on whose ox is gored," put in Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi.

"Sometimes that is the case," replied the witness.

Dillingham said the proposed rate on Cuban sugar would not seriously affect retail consumers' prices, which he argued were now at pre-war level.

He estimated the added duty would result in an increase of about $50,000 to $60,000 in the American housewife's sugar costs.

Compared with general industry of the whole country the wool industry has suffered, Franklin W. Hobbs of Boston, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, told the Senate Finance Sub-Committee in asking tariff relief.

Hobbs touched on adverse conditions and unemployment influencing nation wide organizations representing 200,000 employes and a $200,000,000 annual pay roll.

He pronounced the "general intent" of the House tariff provision on wool as good, but asked that the sub-committee bear in mind that if any rate is changed the compensatory rate should be varied accordingly. He declared that his organization desired American valuation rather than foreign valuation as basic rates for ad valorem duties.

Summon 50 Autoists

Lowell, June 26—Fifty alleged speeders captured by the red flag squad in various parts of the city, have been summoned to appear in district court Friday. The usual fine is $5.

She Battled Torch Fiend Until Rescue Arrived

It was here that the man sought by police lured Miss Groden and Miss Faramian and attempted to slay them when they resisted him. Gasoline from the fiend's expensive auto was poured on the clothes of Miss Groden after she had been rendered unconscious by blows.

JILTED SOUTH BOSTON GIRL DECLARES SHE'LL WED ANOTHER SOON

NOT SORRY WEDDING IS OFF

Miss Mary Doyle of Newman st., South Boston, jilted on the eve of her wedding day by Archibald Norman P. Clendenning, 25, of Arsenal st., Watertown, declared today she will marry another man within a year.

"I don't feel badly about the wedding being called off," she said, "and the other girl need not fear that I will make any trouble.

"I have always had numerous admirers and if I wanted to take the course he did I could have been married now. He wasn't man enough to come and tell me he had changed his mind.

The other girl, Miss Jennie Hazell Rumrill, 38, of Warren st., Roxbury, in the meantime is preparing her trousseau for her wedding to Clendenning, scheduled to take place at the home of her parents the night of July 4.

SCHOOLDAY SWEETHEARTS.

"I have known Archie for years," she said. "We were schoolday sweethearts, and I know he will make a wonderful husband because he loves me. He proposed the day after the 17th of June and I accepted him because I understand him and he understands me. I feel that I am old enough to marry and will make a good wife.

"I want no trouble with the South Boston girl. I am sorry for her, but I am convinced she and Archie were mismated."

Miss Doyle, who is 23, wanted a correction in the statement that she passed up a "date" with Clendenning in favor of a job-hunting expedition.

WASN'T HUNTING JOB.

"I wasn't looking for a job," she declared indignantly. "I didn't feel that I needed a job in view of my approaching marriage. As a matter of fact, I was making plans for the wedding.

"Clendenning filed intentions to marry the other girl the day I was to file our intentions. A friend telephoned the news to me, but Clendenning failed to appear. He didn't have the courage to tell me.

"I am young and I will probably marry another man within a year, but he will be a real man.

"I slept soundly last night and I don't propose to let this thing bother me. I am going back to work for a time, and you may say that I have already forgotten Clendenning."

JILTED GIRL YIELDS TO RIVAL

Miss Mary Doyle of South Boston doesn't care if Archibald N. P. Clendenning of Watertown, to whom she was engaged, is going to marry another girl.

Miss Jennie H. Rumrill of Roxbury says she "understands" Clendenning and is sure they will be very happy.

did not participate in an engagement party with her at Falmouth or at City Point, where champagne drinking was alleged to have featured the "engagement."

Galvin said his only recollection of the coat incident was when he was looking for $1000 which he missed after a drinking bout.

Miss Gibbons said to him, he testified: "Joe, you gave me $500 for a fur coat."

On leaving the witness stand Galvin said he has two children and one adopted child, ranging in age from 10 to 23. He said he separated from his first wife 14 years ago, obtaining a divorce from her in 1925.

MET HIS DAUGHTER.

Galvin first met Miss Gibbons, he testified, at Nahant in 1921, when they had a drinking party in his room. A Mrs. Downey and his chauffeur, William O'Neill, were also present. The witness said he was drinking heavily at that time and Miss Gibbons came to Nahant every day to cheer him up. Once his daughter, Helen, was there, he said, and Miss Gibbons met her.

He denied buying Miss Gibbons a watch, claiming that Mrs. Downey bought it and he reimbursed her, adding: "I was drunk as a fool that day."

In 1922, he said he took Miss Gibbons to Smith College, where his daughter was a student, and that when he first met the plaintiff he told her he was married.

Referring to testimony involving a Boston hotel, the witness said Miss Gibbons went to his room and told him she was ill.

He said he gave her his room and left the hotel. He denied she ever found him in a compromising position with another woman.

HIT WITH [illegible]

He denied giving her a diamond ring, explaining he would not "deceive any good girl." He never gave Miss Gibbons any rings, he added, but admitted she had several which had been the property of his first wife.

Referring to an affair in a Middleton hotel, when Miss Gibbons is alleged to have administered a beating to him, Galvin said he was inside when someone told him there were some people outside who wanted to see him.

"I went out," he said, "and somebody hit me on the head with a bottle. I started to swing with both fists. I was swinging wildly the blood was running down into my eyes. Finally I saw Miss Gibbons in front of me."

He said she left the place and two hours later he met her at his room in Nahant.

Galvin denied Miss Gibbons was in his apartment Christmas eve in 1924, and also denied giving gold to her and to Mrs. Caffrey. He also denied paying her train fare to New Jersey.

The witness admitted writing the two notes introduced as evidence, one involving the transfer of his automobile and the other a promise he would marry Miss Gibbons if he married anyone. He explained, however, that she forced him to write them.

"You are going to marry that girl upstairs," he quoted Miss Gibbons as stating when he attempted to enter an apartment house.

"No, I'll never marry anybody," was the reply.

DEATH ENDS 12 YEAR DREAM OF HOME

War had ravished his homeland, he had been incapacitated in his country's service, and the United States loomed as a promised land and a haven of peace.

With his young bride, he arrived in this country and came to Lawrence, establishing a home and obtaining employment in the mills as a weaver, a trade in which he had previous experience in Belgium.

He was happy for a time; there was plenty of work and plenty of pay, and his wife was by his side.

SEE DREAM COMING TRUE.

But as the years sped on there was born within him a desire to return to the land of his birth, to the people of his kind and to the sharply etched associations of his boyhood. His wife was willing; some day, they decided, they would go back to Belgium to live.

To this end they concentrated, saved their money, went without luxuries when work became dull at the mills. Across the spell of hard times and sacrifices there was always for Louis Van der Hove and his wife that vision of Belgium, the homeland, restored again to beauty and peace.

READY TO START.

This year they decided they could go. Steamship accommodations were secured long in advance; packing became a joyful task.

And this morning found them seated on their trunks and suitcases on the porch of their vacated home at 286 Water st., awaiting the arrival of the expressman.

To Louis Van der Hove it seemed, perhaps, that the expressman would never come. When one has waited along the years, the last few minutes drag very, slowly.

Finally, however, the truck turned the corner, swung before the house and backed up to the steps. Van der Hove assisted the driver in piling the luggage aboard the truck. At last it was all on.

AND THEN CAME DEATH.

Louis Van der Hove climbed off the truck, stood on the steps to watch the departure of his belongings—for Belgium! The driver stepped around to the front of the truck to crank the motor. He spun the crank. Once. Twice. The motor roared. The truck backed up and crushed Louis Van der Hove to death against the steps.

From New York, tomorrow, the S. S. City of Dieppe sails for Antwerp, Belgium. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Van der Hove will not be aboard.

Three Crooks, One Woman, But She Won the Fight

The delicatessen dealer's daughter, Mrs. Edna Probst, 23, appeared.

She reached for a chair. Whang! She smacked one of the gunmen on the head, flooring him. (It was necessary to take a dozen stitches in his head.) She shouted for the police. They came and seized two of the trio. The third escaped, only to be captured.

SHOOTS SELF IN CHEST TO GIVE SCIENCE BRAIN

New York, June 26 (AP)—A desire that his brain be saved for science was believed to have led a young Annapolis graduate, his nerves shattered by service on a submarine, to fire a bullet into his chest instead of his temple.

In a note John A. Traylor, 27, of a prominent Richmond (Va.) family, left for his sister, Miss Mary, of Richmond, he asked that his brain be given to a medical college, that study of it might lead to new discoveries in the field of nervous disorders, and "do someone else some good."

Traylor killed himself in a midtown hotel while his mother was waiting in another room. She heard the first shot and rushed into the room and attempted to wrest the pistol from his hand. In the struggle another bullet was discharged which struck Traylor in the arm.

Chelsea Man Fined as Rum Transporter

Joseph DeNapoli, 25, off 11 Beacon st., Chelsea, was fined $50 for illegal transportation of liquor after pleading guilty before Judge Stearns in Chelsea court yesterday. He was arrested on Addison st., Chelsea, by Patrolman James J. Hurley, who found a five-gallon jug of whiskey under a burlap bag in the car.

Seek $7,000,000 on Sunken Liner

Brest, France, June 26 (INS)—Italian salvage tugs are searching for the wreck of the Peninsular and Orient liner Egypt, which carried nearly $5,000,000 worth of gold and $2,000,000 worth of silver in her hold when she was sunk seven years ago.

Quincy 'Pirates' Bold Finish Ingloriously

Paul La Brecque Henry Vellico Hugh Donnelly

The three "pirates" bold of Quincy who were stranded quite appropriately on Hangman's Island, two miles off shore, after setting out to sweep the Spanish Main of any remaining Spanish galleons, were found rehearsing another proposed expedition near their homes in Adams Shore rd. A bed sheet, a clothes pole and a clothes line, acquired in the best piratical manner, equipped their craft, and they put out to sea before a light breeze. Several hours later they were missed and searchers located the trio on the island. A jury of parents sentenced them to bed, but what is stiff punishment like that to a "pirate." The boys are Paul La Brecque, 8 Sea st.; Henry Vellico, 10, Albatross st., and Hugh Donnelly, 10, Shore rd. (Staff photo.)

DOCTOR GIVEN FIVE YEARS IN GIRL DEATH

Auburn, Me., June 26 (AP)—Dr. Charles K. Donnell, elderly physician of Lewiston, who was convicted of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Thelma Smith of Portland a day was sentenced to serve from five to 15 years in prison.

Mrs. Evella Edwards, who ran a nursing home in Lewiston and was found guilty of manslaughter, was given a sentence of from one to two years.

The State charged that the young Portland mother died of the effects of an illegal operation performed by the physician. It was the seventh time Dr. Donnell had been tried on criminal charges in similar cases. Previously he had been acquitted.

SILK BREECHES, BUCKLES—NOT FOR DAWES

London, June 26 (AP)—Ambassador Dawes will abandon the example set him by certain of his predecessors and will not wear silk knee breeches and patent leather shoes with silver buckles at his presentation to Queen Mary in the third Saint James' court tonight. Instead the ambassador will wear swallow tail evening dress. Both former ambassadors, George Harvey and Alanson Houghton, donned knee breeches for court functions.

Mrs. Dawes will first be presented to Queen Mary. Senora de Merry Del Val, wife of the Spanish ambassador and Dowyen of the diplomatic corps will act as her sponsor.

Mrs. Dawes will then turn sponsor herself and present eight American debutantes and young matrons to Queen Mary. They are the Misses Frances M. Barclay of New York, Rosemary Baur of Chicago, Dorothy Chase of Waterbury, Ct., Natalie Coe of New York, Pauline Fenno of Boston and Lillian Sanger of New York, and Mistresses Edward F. Hutton and Aymar Johnson of New York.

Ambassador Dawes today received the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Oxford University in the famous Sheldonian theater.

Woman Tries to Kill Berlin French Consul

Berlin, June 26 (INS)—M. Rene Binet, French consul at Berlin, narrowly escaped death today at the hands of a woman, believed to be demented, who fired two shots at the consul in his office.

The woman was Agathe Makaroff, a Lithuanian, claimed to have lost a leg as the result of an accident in Paris. She demanded compensation from Binet as the representative of France, and when he refused she leveled a pistol at him and fired twice.

CAPITAL HAILS KELLOGG PACT O. K. BY JAPS

Washington, June 26 (AP)—News of the approval by the Japanese privy council of the Kellogg treaty for the renunciation of war was received in American government circles with a spirit of rejoicing.

Japan is the last of the 15 original signatory powers to ratify the pact and the document will come into full force as soon as the Japanese instrument of ratification is deposited in the archives of the State Department here, as prescribed in the treaty itself.

The pact embraces action, or intended action, by virtually every nation of the world to renounce war as a national policy. Only Argentina and Brazil have not signified their intention to adhere to the pact out of all of the nations which were invited to do so.

This new move toward world peace now promises to become an actual fact in a little more than two years after the first suggestion for the renunciation of war was made by Foreign Ministers Briand of France in a message sent through the Associated Press to the American people April 6, 1927, on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the World War.

Frank B. Kellogg, the then Secretary of State, foreaw in the suggestion a hope for the advancement of a great ideal and shortly thereafter negotiations were opened in Paris among 15 of the principal nations.

TUNNEY PAID $27,500 MORE FOR SILENCE

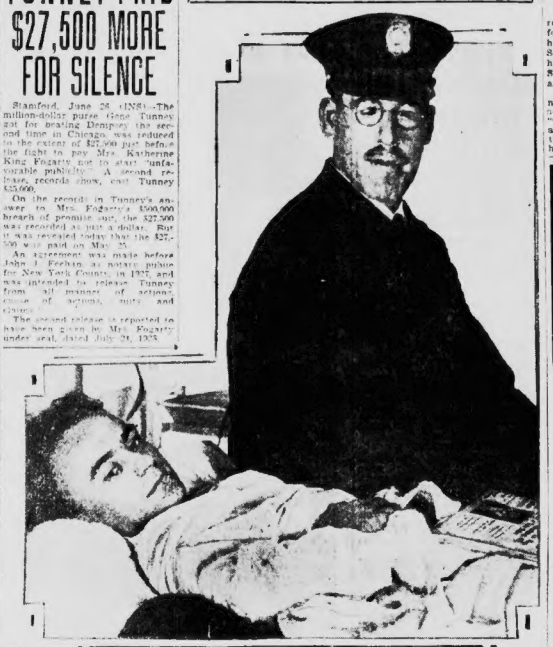
Stamford, June 26 (INS)—The million-dollar purse Gene Tunney got for beating Dempsey the second time in Chicago was reduced to the extent of $27,500 just before the fight to pay Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty not to start "unfavorable publicity." A second release, records show, cost Tunney $25,000.

On the records in Tunney's answer to Mrs. Fogarty's $500,000 breach of promise suit, the $27,500 was recorded as just a dollar. But it was revealed today that the $27,500 was paid on May 25.

An agreement was made before John J. Feehan, as notary public for New York County, in 1927, and was intended to release Tunney from all manner of actions, causes of actions, suits and claims.

The second release is reported to have been given by Mrs. Fogarty under seal, dated July 24, 1928.

WIFE SLASHER GUARDED



Stanley Kapala of Oxford st., Cambridge, under guard of Patrolman John P. Mulqueeny in Cambridge Relief Hospital. Kapala, the police say, slashed his wife, Catherine, on the face and arms with a razor and then apparently threw himself under a trolley car. He was found battered and unconscious in Beacon st., Somerville. No motive for his acts was disclosed.

RUM 'DIGGER' IS FINED $100

Charles Goodell, sometimes known as Charles Glendola, of Linden st, Somerville, was arraigned in the Somerville court today on the charge of keeping and exposing liquor. He was fined $100, appealed and was held in $500.

Goodell was engaged in the apparently peaceful business of digging in a yard at the corner of Water and South sts. Lieut. Charles J. Sheehy noticed him and wondered what he was going to plant. According to the police, Goodell vouched for a pint instead of a potato, needless to say.

The police tried their luck at digging in the same place, and discovered eight pints.

Judge Sweetser declared the pest incident of the Gold Coast who was found guilty of violating the liquor laws would be given a jail sentence. Goodell was the first person to be convicted from the Gold Coast district since the State police took charge.

Southern Cross Arrives at Derby

Derby, Northwest Australia, June 26 (AP)—Capt. Charles Kingsford Smith in his plane, the Southern Cross, landed here at 10:30 a. m. local time, after a non-stop journey across the Australian continent from Sydney. There was perfect flying weather, although it was extremely cold.

The flight was the final lap of a Sydney to England flight, a "non-stop dress" bracket that Chairman Keyes announced hops and shop duties would not be flashed until Friday.

Shoe and Hide Tariff Hearing on Friday

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Tariff increases on hides and boots and shoes proposed in the House bill are expected to be taken up by a Senate finance sub-committee Friday. Hearings began yesterday, but so many witnesses still are to be heard on other items in the "sundries" bracket that Chairman Keyes announced hides and shoe duties would not be reached until Friday.

Ancient Home Burns, Dad Saves Children

New Canaan, Ct., June 26 (AP)—The two young children of William Elliott, 2d, New York business man, were carried to safety by their father when fire destroyed his 200-year-old residence, the "Dan Seavy place," early today. Mrs. Elliott and a maid escaped unaided.

During the fire a tank containing 120 gallons of gasoline exploded. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

Hearing Next Week on Barber Shops

Under the resolve passed at the recent session of the Legislature for an investigation of an alleged health menace in barber shops, the State Department of Health will hold a public hearing in Room 470, State House, next Tuesday at 11 a. m.

"We would be glad," said Commissioner George H. Bigelow, in announcing the hearing yesterday, "to have barbers, physicians and anyone interested give us at this time any information they may have.

Hawks to Hop for Coast Tomorrow

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26—Capt. Frank Hawks landed here after a non-stop flight from East St. Louis, Ill., after a flight of nearly seven hours.

Capt. Hawks reported that a leak developed in the auxiliary gas tank during the flight, but did not affect the plane's flying.

He announced that he will take off at 4 a. m. tomorrow on his proposed attempt to establish a record for a round trip flight from New York to Los Angeles.

Grade School Class Wins Certificate

The eighth grade of John Winthrop school, Brookford st., Dorchester, was presented a certificate of honor by the National Tuberculosis Association for faithful performance of health rules for 12 consecutive weeks.

This was the fifth consecutive year that the class presided over by Miss Esther Lawson won this honor. Presentation of the certificate was made by Mrs. H. P. Lane, president of the Parent-Teachers' Association in the district and vice-president of Boston Tuberculosis Association.

Mass. Assessors to Hear N. Y. Expert

Albany, June 26—State Tax Commr. Mark Graves, who also is president of the National Tax Association will deliver the principal address at the annual summer meeting of the Association of Massachusetts Assessors at Falmouth, Mass., Friday.

Commr. Graves will speak on matters of interest to the Massachusetts assessors and will explain to them some of the workings of New York State's system of taxation. The conference of the assessors opens tomorrow afternoon and closes Friday night.

REVERE DOGS MUST BE KEPT OFF STREETS

As a result of 9-year-old Edith Lentz of 5 Florence ave., Revere, being severely bitten by a dog as she was entering her home last night, Chief of Police Edward J. Tighe started a drive to compel owners of dogs to not only have the dogs licensed, but to also keep them off the streets during the summer days.

"There are many savage dogs roaming about the streets when they should confined during the summer months," said Chief Tighe, "and I am determined that the children of the district will not be menaced by them while they are at play. Owners of unlicensed dogs will be warned by policemen this morning and if they do not heed the warning they will be prosecuted.

Little Edith Lentz is the second member of her family to be bitten by the same dog, her sister Shirley, eight years of age, still bearing scars on her back as a result of being attacked by the dog a month ago.

The mother of the girl said that the dog, which is owned by Arnold Morse of 11 Florence ave., attacked the child as she was going up the stairs to her home and after knocking her down, bit her on the left leg and knee. Neighbors hearing the child scream, drove the dog off and carried the child into her home, where she was treated by a doctor.

Doctor Harris, city veterinary was notified and the dog will be quarantined for a period of two weeks for examination.

HEADS HIGHWAY SAFETY BOARD

Lloyd Blanchard, head of the Springfield Safety Council, has been named secretary of the Governor's committee of 100 prominent citizens on street and highway safety at a salary of $7500 a year.

The appointment came as a surprise as the only name mentioned for the job was that of Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles.

Goodwin, when seen today, refused to make any comment.

Blanchard was picked by the executive committee of 11 of which Howard Coonley is chairman. The other members of the committee of 11 are: Chester I. Campbell, Eben S. Draper, W. J. McDonald, A. C. Ratshesky, Edward C. Stone, Walton L. Crocker, Charles R. Gow, Frederick H. Payne, H. J. Rothwell and Russell Sears.

The committee of 100 and the executive committee of 11 were named last May. The first meeting of the general committee will take place tomorrow at the State House when the scope of the work to be done will be outlined by Chairman Coonley.

Insults Navy Garb, Gets 2-Month Term

New York, June 26 (AP)—For an insult to the uniform of the Navy, Clifford Reed, chief usher for a movie theater, must spend two months in jail. Joseph P. Collins, a seaman of the battleship Wyoming, and his mother were put out of orchestra seats because the youth was in uniform.

"Eleven years ago," said Justice Kelly, "you would have thrown yourself on this young man's neck and dragged him in."

San Francisco Host to Flag Winners

San Francisco, June 26 (INS)—The winners of the national flag contest, two boys and two girls, were being entertained in San Francisco today. They are Alma Groves, Byronville, Ga.; Mary McGonigal, Troy, N. Y.; Marie Clark, Detroit, and Robert L. Sullivan, Syracuse, N. Y.

LOSES CLAIM TO 2,800,000 ACR.

Washington, June 26 (AP)—A bill removing 2,800,000 acres of national forest land claimed by the Northern Pacific Railway, from operation under the land grant acts was signed today by President Hoover.

Under the act the United States retains the title to the lands in question, but the act has no effect upon the present title of the railway to the right of way acquired under the grant or lands used by the company in the operation of its roads.

Germans Adopt U. S. Diphtheria Plan

Germany, June 26 (AP)—German physicians in annual meeting today approved the American method of diphtherial protective vaccination, used in 1928 for 100,000 Berlin school children, three-fourths of whom escaped the disease. One-fourth of them became ill.

LIQUOR PRICE TO BE RAISED IN MEMPHIS

Memphis, Tenn., June 26 (AP)—More than 70 persons were in jail here today because federal prohibition agents have determined to "raise the price of liquor in Memphis to the national level."

Forty-two agents started out with thick sheafs of warrants sworn out by under-cover agents and by nightfall all the jails in the city were crowded. A. W. Mayo of Louisville, district prohibition administrator, said all prisoners would be prosecuted under the Jones law and that padlocking would be resumed in many cases.

"We are going to raise Memphis liquor prices to the level of the rest of the country," Mayo declared.

Mayo said he had 100 or 150 more warrants to serve.

Question Who Gets Inheritance Tax

Judge Dolan in Suffolk Probate Court was called on today to determine whether Massachusetts or California is entitled to an inheritance tax on the estate of Mrs. Bertha Hugill. She inherited $87,000 from her husband, William J. Hugill, when they resided in Mt. Pleasant st., Roxbury.

After his death she went to Los Angeles and was a certified public accountant there. She recently died at Los Angeles, aged 52 years. About $25,000 of her estate is in Massachusetts and the balance in California. A petition for instructions was presented by Asst. Atty.-Gen. Lourie at request of James E. Kelley, administrator.

FRANCE GREETS U.S. BRIDE OF AIRMAN

Havre, France, June 26 (AP)—Pauline Parker, now Madame Jean Assolant, was welcomed to France with an airplane salute today while her husband and his two comrades of the Yellow Bird bent low and kissed her hand.

Assolant's bride of but a few weeks was jealously guarded by the three airmen and their officer friends and went to a Duchair river resort for lunch. They probably will fly to Paris.

Assolant and his comrades, Armando Lotti and Rene Le Fevre, came to Havre by car early this morning, but some of their friends flew from the military airfield at Le Bourget and a whole squadron of planes tuned up at the Bleville airfield near here.

When the Ile De France, bearing the American wife of Assolant, came into Havre, a military plane with Assolant's friends aboard flew to meet her and circled low while the gangplank was lowered to allow the American bride, her arms full of roses, to be the first to land and to be gathered into her husband's arms.

Farm Board to Have Northwest Member

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The business man or banker to be appointed to the federal farm board probably will come from the northwestern tier of states.

This was made known at the White House today with the news that Mr. Hoover was making satisfactory progress toward naming the board members and that some of the name probably would be announced this week.

ZEPP'S ENGINE TROUBLE DUE TO SHIMMY

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

Friedrichshafen, June 26.—The cause of the motor trouble which recently interrupted the second American flight of the Graf Zeppelin has been definitely established as due to unusual vibration set up by the coupling between the engine and the propeller shaft.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, in an exclusive and first authoritative statement made since the investigation was started at Friedrichshafen, said it was impossible to have foreseen such trouble but, as a result, he feels that the scientific formula has been found which will not only eliminate similar trouble in the future, but which will also benefit builders of motors and aircraft the world over.

MAY START IN JULY

The commander of the great leviathan of the air said the long delay in preparing for the next American flight is not due to any fault within the ship itself, but to the problem of motors which, when definitely solved, as he believed it now is, will assure the airship its proper place in being reliable means of regular commercial transportation. Dr. Eckener said:

"I hope we will be able to make the first test flight of the Graf in the latter part of July, and as soon as new equipment can be built and installed to avoid similar motor trouble in the future.

"I cannot say definitely when the next American flight will take place, but it will probably be around the last week in July.

"As simply as I can, I'll explain the cause of the recent motor trouble. To deal with the entire question there will be the scientific explanation forthcoming later from Dr. Maybech, head of the Maybech Motor Works, and myself. Several days more work is required to reach a definite solution, and this will be contained in the official statement.

MOTOR TROUBLE

"Some time ago, it was ascertained that the engines themselves had certain slight vibrations which were not harmful, as had been proved by past experiences of several hundred hours run without the slightest disturbance.

"We had only observed that in certain parts of the coupling—that is, the connection between the engine and the propeller shafts—there seemed to be unnecessary wear.

"In order to eliminate this wear, a certain change was made in the coupling which, as investigation now has shown, was responsible for the trouble.

"It was responsible because it permitted a condition of vibration to arise in the whole propelling unit which, by increasing the vibration inherent to the motor, caused the breakdown.

"It was impossible, of course, to foresee that any such trouble would arise, since no scientific theory had yet been evolved sufficient to predict the effect of any such changes on the behavior of the engine and propeller shafts."

Newton Schools May Have Holiday June 17

A request that Bunker Hill Day, June 17, be made a school holiday in Newton has been received by the school committee from Alderman Silvanus Smith of Auburndale.

Alderman Smith in his communication to the committee called attention to the large number of absences that occurred in the schools on Bunker Hill Day this year, stating that he had been informed that about half of the pupils failed to attend. He also stated that the day is observed as a school holiday in nearly all other cities and towns in Greater Boston.

With a Stone He Bags a Big Bear

Fort Arthur, Ont., June 26 (AP)—Paul John is a heap big Injun fisherman who will stand no molestation of his catch. A bear was purloining his pike. Paul John threw a stone at the animal, stunned it, then rushed in and dispatched it with a hunting knife.

About 75 employes of Waltham City Hall attended their annual outing yesterday at Camp Massapoag, Dunstable. The program included a dinner and many sporting contests. Members of the city council were guests at the event.

FAIR COHASSET GIRL SKIPPERS OPEN SERIES

All On Hand to Take Part in First of Midweek Races

A DAZZLING TURN-OUT OF youthful and gay skippers will hold sway this afternoon at the first of the midweek series of the Cohasset Yacht Club. Magenta bandannas tied in gypsy knots over luxuriant bobs and growing hair will proclaim to the cheering gallery that the race is on. For such is the headgear of those merry young girls who have taken to their boats as the navigator of old — all-knowing and keenly aware of the idiosyncrasies of rushing water. The riotous gaiety of color and the sartorial beauty of the boat racing attendants is ever a thing of enchantment and visualized romance.

UNDER THE WATCHFUL EYE of the regatta committee, of which Charles Higginson is chairman, the Cape Cod knockabout class will rise to the occasion this day. Miss Jane Bancroft and Hugh, Jr., daughter and son of the commodore of the club, have entered their boats and when the three o'clock gun is fired will sail away to do themselves proud. Others who have evidenced spirited rivalry in the midweek races are Barbara Bremer, Mary and Frances McElwain, Chauncey C. Nash, Barbara McQuesten, Esther and Ruth Sears, Charles Francis Adams, Jr., Barbara Fitch and Marjorie Nuther. All summer these young men and women sail their boats, the debutantes with an eye to the future when the women's championship races bring to the Cohasset shores the brightest skippers of the lot.

AND STILL THE SWEET-faced and smartly dressed debutantes continue to mark themselves in the exodus of foreign-shores travelers. Three days after this one will find Sarah and Elizabeth Shurtleff on board ship for a two months' perusal of continental capitals. Their mother, Mrs. Arthur A. Shurtleff, will accompany them and also in the party will be Miss Rose S. Nichols, sister to Mrs. Shurtleff. Then, too, have sailed Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno of Beacon st., and her daughter, Elizabeth. Europe in its entirety is the goal of these two. Bound for the Scandinavian countries are Dr. and Mrs. R. Heber Howe and their son, Richard, who tomorrow will be aboard the steamship Drottningholm, sailing for Gothenberg. After a visit to Norway, Sweden and Denmark the trio will return to America on August 4.

THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE IS in the veins of bright-eyed Alice Dodge, debutante daughter of the Robert Gray Dodges of Beacon street, who are now comfortably settled for the season at the lovely Greenwood Farm. A Summer spent in leisure is not wholly to the liking of this college-bound young lady and the bad-weather months will find her reading to the children of the Island Sanitarium at Marblehead, or aiding in any other capacity which her superiors see fit. In the fall she will enter Vassar, the memories of a profitable summer her inspiration for bigger and better social service endeavor. Not much will her friends see of Dr. Katharine Dodge, who was graduated from Johns Hopkins Medical School last year. The talented daughter of the Dodges is to be an interne at the Bellevue Hospital in New York during the summer and there she will remain to load her youthful brain with scientific data.

Alice Dodge, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray Dodge, who will devote part of her summer to social service work in the Children Island Sanitarium at Marblehead.

FROM OUT OF TOWN THOSE who live in the big way continue to grace the High with their presence, and I find at the Ritz-Carlton Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Mace's signatures on the register. From Seattle, Washington, Richard K. Leanord has crossed the country to spend a spell under Eastern skies. And from half-way across the country, Nathan William MacCheeney has left his Riverhill Farm at Lake Forest, Illinois, to visit on the North Shore.

IN THIS SAME SECTION OF the summer colonies lives Miss Margaret Fitzhugh Browne at her Cove House Studio, in River rd. Each year this talented person holds an "at home," invitation to which is anxiously awaited for by hopeful art devotees. She has selected July 5 to serve her tea this year and show a portrait of Capt. Howard Blackburn, which later is to be presented to the Master Mariners' Association of Gloucester by the Cruising Club of America. Some of her recent studies in Mexico will also be on exhibition and for those who have once before been to an "at home" with Miss Brown, this bit of gossip is sufficient of interest to be on the inside the fifth day of July.

One Man in Crusade Against Near Beer

Des Moines, Ia., June 26 (AP)—A one-man crusade against the sale in Iowa of near beer was under full steam today, with John B. Hammond, former chief of police furnishing the power. The 1,950 bottles of the beverage which were seized under a search warrant obtained by Hammond, were the subject of a municipal court hearing today. Hammond contends the near beer, being a malt beverage, comes under the state prohibition law.

Fires at Priest, Hits Worshipper at Altar

Chicago, June 26 (AP)—A man armed with a pistol invaded Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church early today and fired two shots at the priest, the Rev. Fr. J. Keenan.

The bullets missed their mark, but one wounded Richard Murphy, who was kneeling at the altar. The assailant, identified as Charles Foster, then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a slight scalp wound. Police said Foster was intoxicated.

EUROPE'S HOPE FOR EASING OF DEBT DOOMED

Washington, June 26 (INS)—European hopes for softer war debt terms from the United States—rekindled now that the reparations controversy has been settled on a new basis—are doomed to disappointment.

Nothing has occurred, either in the Paris conference or in yesterday's long talk between President Hoover and J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young, which calls for any alteration of the fixed American policy with regard to the allied debts, it was stated officially today.

Messrs. Morgan and Young reported informally to Mr. Hoover the intimate details of the Paris settlement, and gave him their opinion of the outlook in Europe. The question of how large an amount of the German reparation bonds the American investment market is going to be called upon to absorb was touched upon, but nothing apparently was decided.

It has been brought rather forcibly to Washington's attention, however, that Germany is now ranged alongside the allied nations in the incessant pressure—and hope for the cancellation—for the long down the amounts owed the United States. Germany's only hope of lessening her own load lies in American debt cancellation, which makes her a direct and interested party to the unceasing propaganda.

60 SPEED TRAP VICTIMS FINED

Speed traps in South Boston netted about sixty violators of the law who appeared in the South Boston District Court today. Almost all paid fines of five or ten dollars.

Frank Wainwright of Minot st., Dorchester, was arraigned for driving under the influence and was fined $100. He was given two weeks to pay.

The traps were set on Boston st., Dorchester ave. and Old Colony Boulevard in an attempt by the police to stop unreasonable speeding in that district.

Albany, June 26 (INS)—Dr. Raymond F. C. Kleb, commissioner of correction, announced that more than 26,000 persons, the largest number since the enactment of the probation law in 1901, last year were placed on probation by New York courts.

More than $1,000,000 was collected by probation officers, his announcement said, from non-supporting husbands, for fines and for restitutions. The announcement was made in connection with the annual report of the division of probation.

Clubs in Drive For Women's Bureau

IF the nation's clubwomen lend their wholehearted support, legislation will be passed for the establishment of a woman's bureau in the metropolitan police department.

The importance of such a measure and the worthiness of such legislation, as stressed by Miss Julia Jaffray of New York City, at the Biennial Council meeting, will be exemplified in the results of a permanent department.

The House of Representatives passed the act for a woman's bureau, but the action came too late for sanctioning of the Senate. With the added assistance of two and a half million clubwomen, what is today favorable will next winter be given permanence.

Miss Jaffray is chairman of the General Federation's division of correction of the department of public welfare. In our own state, Mrs. Albert B. Carter is chairman of the committee on social and industrial conditions coming under the public welfare department of which Mrs. Axel A. Packard, state president, is the adviser.

The most notable achievement during the past year has been in the change-over of Old Berks County Jail in Pennsylvania, Miss Jaffray told the country's representative clubleaders. It was transformed into a model industrial farm.

The reorganization of prison industries program as sponsored by the General Federation and endorsed by the national committee on prisons and prison labor will be outlined in more minute detail later and given out to the state federations for individual support and problem-workout.

Miss Jaffray urged the clubwomen to "go to jail," learn the facts and start "spring housecleaning." Since community service has been the accepted keynote of the federation's present administration, prison community work is strongly emphasized by the New York chairman.

Along these lines, Mrs. Clarence Frazin of Wilmington, Del., chairman of the department of legislation, told of the legislative activities of state federations which succeeded in the establishment of women's reformatories for youthful women offenders.

Final summer trip abroad. The winter months keeps this busy club lady on the go, and every minute

GENERAL FEDERATION

Its president, Mrs. John F. Sippel, has accepted a committee position for the American Classical League, of which Ralph Van Deman Magoffin of New York is president. The league is now completing plans for a fitting celebration of the 2000th anniversary of the great Roman poet, Vergil. Mrs. Sippel will serve on the committee on lectures.

BOSTON Y. W. C. A.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Norma F. Greeley, camp chairman that Camp Winnecumet, the summer camp of this organization, will be opened for young girls on Friday, continuing to July 13, when business girls will be entertained after that date until September 4.

STATE FEDERATION

There is a rumor that the Massachusetts State Federation department of Americanization, of which Mrs. Charles Danforth is chairman, is to spent a new name in the fall, but what it is still remains a secret.

D'ANNUNZIO IS LYING RIGID IN DARK

Gardone, Italian Riviera, June 26—A strange picture has been painted by persons familiar with the surrounding of Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italian poet and playwright, who was operated on here Sunday for appendicitis.

The hero of Fiume, it was said, lies absolutely rigid in utter darkness on a cot in a little room adjoining the improvised operating clinic, his faithful servant, Cama, a sailor on the famous ship Puglia, and a companion in the Fiume expedition, sleeps on a rug outside the door and allows none but the nurses and doctors to approach.

The poet has composed a quatrain about his operation, which he underwent with only a local anaesthetic, and he astonished his surgeons by reciting it to them in a clear, cold voice.

The more optimistic of his attendants said today he would be as well as ever within a week, but his doctors were determined to insist upon at least a fortnight in bed, undisturbed by visits.

Awarded $2232 for Mother's Injuries

Auburn, Me., June 26—The jury at the Superior Court returned a verdict of $2232.45 against Eleanor Nelson, the 23-year-old daughter of Congressman John E. Nelson of Augusta in a suit brought by Everett Leroy Albee, executor of the estate of Hattie A. Albee of Auburn.

The suit was brought to recover damages for injuries suffered by the plaintiff's mother, who on November 24 last was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Nelson.

Mrs. Albee died a little later of influenza and not from the injuries.

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 26 (AP)—Worcester Reed Warner, 83, one of the founders of Warner & Swasey Inc., which constructed the telescopes for Lick and Yerkes Observatories, is dead in Eisenach, Germany, a message received here disclosed.

305 Famous Beauty Shops find:

"... With all our experience, we actually cannot distinguish between the hands of a woman of wealth and leisure and the hands of a woman who uses Lux in the dishpan..."

HAVE you envied the smooth, white hands of the woman with servants to do all her work? Now millions of women who wash dishes every day of their lives have hands just as truly lovely—because they use Lux in the dishpan!

Beauty experts know the reason . . . know that many soaps dry up the precious beauty oils of the skin, giving the hands a horridly red, drawn, "work-worn" look . . . while gentle, bland Lux soothes and protects the beauty oils—keeps hands smooth and white! That is why 305 famous Beauty Shops call Lux "beauty care right in the dishpan."

Give your hands this wonderful beauty care—the wisest, most inexpensive known! Lux for all your dishes costs less than 1¢ a day!

(Left) Scene in New York beauty salon . . . Experts in such famous shops agree that the woman who uses Lux in her dishpan gives her hands real "beauty care."

B. & M. ECONOMY HIT BY BOSSY GILLIS

Mayor Andrew J. "Bossy" Gillis of Newburyport today took the Boston & Maine Railroad management to task, charging that the road is attempting to be economical at the expense of the safety of the public.

Speaking in opposition to the proposal of the road to substitute automatic signals for gatemen at the turnpike and Park st. crossings in Newburyport, before the Public Utility Commission, "Bossy" declared that what was needed is fewer white-collared executives and more blue-collared or no-collared workers.

"The crossings should be guarded 24 hours a day by gatemen, and it might be well to have the signals put in as well," the fiery executive said.

The road should drop a few of its white-collared so-called executives and put on more gatemen. Then there would be little likelihood of any bad accident occurring such as the one we read of the other day."

T. Francis Kelleher, who introduced the mayor, also opposed the change, and Charles T. Smith, a Newbury attorney, claimed the crossing under consideration was one of the most dangerous in Essex county.

TIMBER HURLS MAN TO DEATH

Florin Head, 45, president of the Bay State Casket Co., plunged three stories to his death in Liverpool st., East Boston today when a timber with which he was trying to pry loose a jammed elevator knocked him from his perch outside the elevator shaft.

Head landed in a truck parked outside his factory and was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital in the same truck. He was dead on arrival there.

Lutherans Number $1,000,000 in World

New York, June 26 (AP)—The Lutheran churches of the world, which opened their second world convention in Copenhagen today, have a total strength of $1,000,000 members, Rev. G. L. Kiefer, statistician of the National Lutheran Council, announced. The number is nearly half of all Protestantism, he estimates.

The Lutheran churches of the United States and Canada have 11,885 ministers and 15,567 congregations, with 4,234,598 baptized members, 2,802,779 confirmed members and 2,370,886 communicant members. They have 10,756 Sunday schools with 121,758 officers and teachers and 1,281,675 pupils. The value of congregational property is $328,957,011.

Prof. Snook, Slayer of Co-Ed, Found Sane

Columbus, O., June 26—Three state alienists have reported that Professor James H. Snook, confessed killer of Miss Theora Hix, his secret sweetheart, is sane.

Snook confessed to the slaying after 23 hours' questioning by relays of detectives under the county prosecutor. But when he was arraigned in court he pleaded not guilty.

Regarding this as a repudiation of his confession, and anticipating the possibility of an insanity plea when he goes on trial July 22, authorities ordered that alienists examin Snook.

Randolph Man Held for Auto Fatality

Benjamin B. Reed of 80 Main st., Randolph, operator of the automobile that crashed into the store on Dudley st. and Albion st. Sunday morning, pleaded not guilty in Roxbury Court to a charge of manslaughter, in connection with the death of one of the two men pinned against the store by the automobile.

OUT OF EXILE, a dictator speaks. Leon Trotsky tells the detailed story of the career which led him from a remote farm in Russia half way around the world and back to Russia again in a position of power not exceeded by that of the Tsars. Intimate, revealing autobiography of one of the most vivid characters of our modern life. Starts next Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

At Convention

Mrs. John J. Salmon of Cambridge, past State regent and national director of the Catholic Daughters of America, who is at Galveston, Texas, to attend the pre-convention supreme board meeting. The convention opens June 29.

The Massachusetts delegation to the biennial convention of the Catholic Daughters of America will leave Boston Saturday morning for Galveston, Texas, where the national conclave is scheduled to open on Tuesday, July 2.

Headed by the newly elected State regent, Mrs. Marianne J. Collins, the party of nine will travel overland arriving in time to assist at the pontifical high mass which will open the four-day session.

Rt. Rev. C. E. Byrne, D. D., Bishop of Galveston, will celebrate the mass while the sermon will be preached by Rt. Rev. William J. Hafey, D. D., Bishop of Raleigh, N. C., and national chaplain of the order.

Three hundred delegates from all over the United States will be present, representing a membership of close to 200,000 Catholic women.

The business sessions will be at the Hotel Buccaneer during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Supreme Regent Miss Mary C. Duffey of Newark, N. J., will preside.

Mrs. John J. Salmon of Cambridge, past State regent and a national director of the order, left Boston Monday to attend a pre-convention meeting of the supreme board at Galveston on June 29 and 30 and July 1.

Included in the delegation which leaves Saturday are: Miss Marianna J. Collins, Mrs. Lillian C. Clarke, Mrs. Anna Murphy, Mrs. Winifred Scanlon, Miss Margaret Cahill, Mrs. Mary Cahill and Mrs. Helen Dougherty.

Open Camp Plymouth Officially Today

Bellows Falls, Vt., June 26—Camp Plymouth on Echo Lake, owned by the Windham-Windsor Council of Boy Scouts, is to be officially opened today. Chic Fowler, the Scout executive, is to have immediate charge, with Coach Graf as assistant camp director. The camp is insured this season against personal and public liability, and a hospital is located on the grounds, with a nurse and physician on call at all times. The new museum already contains several hundred specimens in botany, mineralogy, bird study and science departments.

Editor Returns to Prison Chain Gang

Chicago, June 26—Robert Elliott Burns, who escaped seven years ago from a Georgia chain gang and became publisher of a successful Chicago real estate magazine, is returning to Georgia to complete his prison sentence. His return would be voluntary, he told Judge Joseph B. David of the superior court, when habeas corpus proceedings in his behalf were dropped.

Burns, who had established himself here as a real estate promotion expert and publisher is reputed to have earned $20,000 last year.

Owner Finds $1800 in His Stolen Auto

Platteville, Wis., June 26—When Harry Wienbergen's automobile was returned to him by county officials who recovered it from a trio of bandits Wienbergen was pleased to find that a thermos bottle he had left in the machine still remained.

He opened the bottle and discovered $1800 in bills that had been hidden there by the thieves.

HOW TO TAKE THE BURN OUT OF SUNBURN

If you are suffering tortures from sunburn you will be glad to know of Ice Mint, a dainty snow white cream that takes the burn out of sunburn in less than a minute. No longer is it necessary to go through the pain and agony of sunburn.

Just apply a little Ice Mint to the inflamed skin and immediately you will feel its soothing effect; your flaming, burning skin becomes cool and comforting. Keeps the skin soft and smooth and draws out the fire and sting in no time. Ice Mint will not cause a pleasant tan and works as quickly; you will be delighted.

Ice Mint may be had at any drug store, and if you are one of the many who are now suffering from sunburn a trial will convince you of it's cooling, soothing effect. Get a jar today from any drug store and do get sunburn AND MORE BURNING.

PONSELLE TO FORM OPERA COMPANY

New Haven, Ct., June 26 (AP)—Carmela Ponselle, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, visiting friends here today, announced she is planning to organize a new grand opera company in New York, to be called the All Star Grand Opera Company. Among its cast will be, she said Titta Ruffo and Feodor Chaliapin.

Miss Ponselle, whose home is in Meriden, stopped here a short time before going to Old Orchard, Me., where she will spend her summer vacation.

M'DONALD BAN TO BE LIFTED

Aberdeen, Scotland, June 26 (AP)—After 13 years of waiting Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of England, today turned the table on the detractors of Ramsay MacDonald, war-time pacifist.

The Moray Golf Club has called a special meeting to consider rescinding a resolution it passed in 1916, depriving Mr. MacDonald of membership because of his public utterances concerning the war.

The prime minister's speeches and interviews then caused grave dissatisfaction among members opposed to his pacifist attitude, and led to numerous resignations from the club.

USES TRIAL AS PLEA FOR A WARRANT

His own trial was the means by which Lambert Marcucci, of Hull st., North End, today sought a warrant charging Patrolman John J. Vadeboncoeur with assault upon himself and mother.

Marcucci went on trial in municipal court charged with assault and battery and operating an automobile in a manner to endanger lives and safety, with Patrolman Vadeboncoeur the complainant.

Marcucci was represented by Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher and before the hearing began it was agreed the court should decide on the basis of evidence presented at the trial whether Marcucci's application for a warrant for the patrolman should be granted.

The counter charges are the outgrowth of an altercation between the patrolman and defendant on Rutherford ave., June 17. Both were driving automobiles and the patrolman was not in uniform when it occurred.

Vadeboncoeur testified that he was forced to the sidewalk by the defendant's car and that he did not lay hands upon Marcucci until the latter struck the first blow. He denied striking Marcucci's mother and declared she was injured when she grasped his shirt and fell as the buttons gave way.

Patrolman Cohen testified that while talking Marcucci to a hospital after the fight, the defendant told him that if he had had a gun he would have shot Vadeboncoeur, who, he claimed, struck his mother. Later Marcucci told him, Cohen declared, that he was not sure it was the patrolman who had hit his mother.

Government Red Tape Gets Stimson's Goat

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Weighty questions of state became of no consequence today as Secretary Stimson officially took up the case of William Hamilton Bones.

The bearer of this imposing array of names is the last member of Secretary Stimson's household to arrive in the United States from the Philippines. William Hamilton Bones is a pet Hawaiina goat of which Secretary Stimson claims to be godfather. Capt. Eiggs A. Regnier, military aide to Mr. Stimson while he was Governor-General at Manila, is the reputed foster father.

To Mr. Stimson and Capt. Regnier William Hamilton Bones was the official bugnerr of the Malacanan Palace, the Governor-General's residence in Manila, but to the inspectors of the Agricultural Department at San Francisco, where he has arrived, William Hamilton Bones is just a goat reaching immigrant goat which cannot be admitted under the department's regulations.

Secretary Stimson has asked Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to see if something cannot be done to forestall the immediate deportation of William Hamilton Bones on the next train back to Manila. If the red tape can be removed from the immigration barriers, William Hamilton Bones will take his proper place with Mr. Stimson's pet parrot, "The Old Soak," whom recently arrived from the Philippines.

U. S. WON'T ACT AS COLLECTOR

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Secretary Stimson announced today there had been no change in the attitude of the American government and that American officials were not to participate directly or indirectly in the collection of German reparations through the proposed international bank or otherwise.

Announcement that the Washington government had no desire to participate in collection of reparations was made by the secretary on May 16.

He said the United States had never accepted membership on the reparations commission and had attached to join the allies in the confiscation of sequestered German property and its application to war claims.

200 JOIN BIG SHOE STRIKE

Haverhill, June 26 (AP)—The ranks of striking shoeworkers in this city were augmented today by 200 employes of the Clinton Shoe Company, bringing the total number now on strike to about 500.

An agreement between the Clinton company and the Haverhill Shoeworkers' Protective Union expired today. Twenty-four factories are now idle because of the strike.

The district council of the shoeworkers' union today declined an offer by Mayor Forrest V. Smith to use the municipal council as an agency in settling the strike. The union officials declared they had previously stated their demands and it now rests with the manufacturers to take the initiative.

The union demands provide for 10 per cent increase in wages and a five-day week of 44 hours. The manufacturers have offered to continue the present wage scale for three years.

WARNERS SIGN HEADLINERS FOR FILMS.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by General Service

LOS ANGELES, June 26 — The heat is enervating to most folks and it keeps them from any extra brain or physical effort, but it only spurs Jack Warner on to work harder. While all the rest of the world is trying to keep cool, Jack is in the throes of planning the "Show of Shows," a big revue in which all of Warners' headliners are to do some special number.

During January, this production will be called Jack's "Good Man Friday," as well as his right hand boost, in lining up the cast and getting them ready. The first name signed was Jack Barrymore. That is positively natural. He will do a sketch from Richard the Third. Charlotte Greenwood will also do one of her zany and clever numbers. As for Al Jolson, will Warners wouldn't have any kind of a revue without Al Jolson, the white-haired boy of Vitaphone, in a special song number.

Others who will be invited to come under the tent are Ted Lewis, Irene Bordoni, Winnie Lightner, Dolores Costello and Monte Blue. What those names will do to the box office is nobody's business. Darryl Zanuck will be the Jesse White of these Warner specials—yes he's to produce them.

I AM certainly glad Robert Armstrong is to get a break. I like that boy on the screen, I'm telling you. I think he is a good actor and he has a personality that no one can ignore. He is to be starred in "Oh, Yeah," with Zazu Pitts and James Gleason, in a story adapted by the great Gleason himself. The original was called "No Brakes," and it is by A. W. Somerville.

Moreover, Tay Garnett, who in two months will have to get finance whom he is called Mr. Patsy Ruth Miller, will direct. I reckon Tay will never refuse being called Mr. Patsy Ruth Miller for he is a good director on his own and he made his name before he ever met Pat.

WHEN last I saw Hobart Bosworth he was sitting in a comfortable chair on Jack Farrymore's set waiting to go on with his lines. He looked well and happy and at peace with the world. No wonder, with jobs as plentiful. His next picture is "Hurricane," and it is to be made for Columbia, which will star him, with Ralph Ince directing.

Harry Cohn is giving Bosworth this job because of "Blood Ship," probably the best thing Columbia has ever made. "Hurricane" is the sequel to "Blood Ship," and was announced some time ago, but an unfortunate play had to be found for no producer in his right mind would make anything but a talkie these days.

MONEY is no object where Paul Whiteman is concerned. Why should it be when he was handed $80,000 just to put his name on the dotted line on a contract with Universal? Furthermore, he was promised $8000 a week for eight weeks and an additional $500 weekly for his band. His salary was to start after he reached here.

Universal kept the word, I will say that for them. The Whiteman salary is being paid but there isn't the ghost of a story in sight. Whiteman, so I hear, is determined not to play the handsome hero. He prefers to stick to his character of being a band leader. He wants to wave the baton and make swell music, not to smile. Universal would sort of like to have the portly Paul emote. Thereby bangs a story. They'll get it across soon for a weekly payroll is mounting higher and higher.

IRENE RICH is closing her vaudeville sketch in Baltimore and rushing home to Los Angeles to play opposite Will Rogers in "They Had to See Paris." You are probably thinking the girl has affected my brain, for only a few days ago I boldly announced that Florence Oakley, wife of Lewis Stone, had been chosen for the Miss Rogers role in the film.

Miss Oakley has been taken ill so Miss Rich is being requested to get home as fast as automobile airplane and train can carry her. Irene was originally slated to play opposite Rogers, but she decided to forego a vaudeville tour.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Jane Winton entertaining at her home following the premiere of "Jonesy," Mrs. Jack Warner in a green sport suit, entertaining a group of girls at th Brown Derby; Clara Bow attracting attention at Malibu when she went in swimming; Leatrice Joy singing a song in front of the microphone, thereby proving to guests on the First National lot that she does not use a double.

CANADIAN RUM FLOW TO U. S. CUT SHARPLY

Windsor, Ont., June 26 (Canadian Press)—Canadian customs returns for the current month should show a significant drop in the exports of liquor from the Essex border docks, according to reports of the United States authorities.

Imports at the one-time notorious liquor receiving depot of Ecorse have been cut to a fraction, according to customs patrols, while the occasional rum boat on the American side of the Detroit river, is an oddity these nights, they say.

Considerable liquor, however, is getting through below Ecorse on the Trenton front. Rum boats are shooting out from Amherstburg into the lake and there are not government boats in adequate numbers to stem the tide.

But this situation is to be remedied as speedily as possible, according to prohibition enforcement agencies. More than 50 boats of all descriptions are to be in service by July 1, it was reported, ranging in type from launches for use in shallow channels, to 70-foot speed boats, carrying one-pound guns for long chases.

JUDGE LENIENT WITH HAIR SNIPPER

For cutting off the tresses of Katharine Ahearn, Jr., of 520 Center st, Jamaica Plain, on a Jamaica Plain trolley car June 14 while the young girl was with her mother, 21-year-old Willard Maroudien, a Tech student living in Magazine st., Cambridge, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction today by Judge Ahern in Roxbury Court.

The sentence was suspended for two years.

Judge Ahern refused to the plea of counsel to place the young student on probation. The judge said he believed it was necessary to protect the public by placing a check on the student.

During the trial young Maroudien explained his complex, in response to Judge Ahern's questions, by saying that he had an uncontrollable impulse to cut off girls' hair. "I did it because I like women's hair," he said. "I knew it was wrong to do it and I tried to control the impulse to do it, but I could not."

Maroudien told Judge Ahern that he cut off the hair of 11-year-old Alma Troy in Park st. subway a few days prior to snipping Miss Ahearn's. "I also cut off another girl's hair, the same night as she was leaving a Cambridge theatre," said the student.

Special Officer Condon of Lagrange st. police station testified he found five or six different locks of girls hair in Maroudian's room. He said Miss Troy identified one of the locks as hers.

EQUITY IN ROW OVER TALKIES

Hollywood, Cal., June 26 (AP)—A tumultuous meeting of prominent screen actors and actresses, members of the Actors' Equity Association, adjourned early today without taking action in the recent move by the association calling for the establishment of "Equity Shop" in the talking motion picture industry.

The meeting, called by four actors representing the Actors' Equity Association of California was brought to a close after a stormy session in which uninvited members of the Equity body arose and challenged the action of the group in calling a meeting.

Conrad Nagel, chairman at the meeting, said it had not been called as a protest against Equity. "However, many of us felt that the way the situation is being handled by President Frank Gillmore is not as it should be," he declared.

CITY OFFICIAL IS SHORT $21,206

Augusta, Me., June 26—Orin B. Frost, ex-city treasurer under the Democratic administration, is short in his accounts $21,206.42. This covers the years of 1923 to 1928.

An exhaustive audit of the books, begun March 22 by a Portland firm, has just been completed, and Mayor Robert A. Cony has made public the result of the audit.

Of the shortage the sum of $15,458.75, is represented through the issuance of checks payable either to cash or to the bank and cashed in the office of the treasurer.

Girl Says Magnate, 62, Wooed Ardently

Chicago, June 26 (INS)—Details of a proposed ante-nuptial agreement which is said to have wrecked their romance were to be unfolded today as Ann Livingston, pretty divorcee, resumed the stand in her $250,000 breach of promise suit against Franklin Hardinge, 62, millionaire oil-burner manufacturer.

Sea Scouts to Go on 5-Day Cruise

TAKES OVER 12 AIRPORTS IN NEW ENGLAND

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

The greatest record of advancement aviation ever set up in New England has been established by the Curtiss Flying Services. In January, Curtiss had nothing, and was still a dream, with little on which to work. Curtiss now operates 12 airports in New England, and this expansion of the first six months is small compared to the expansion that is promised for the next six months.

The first Limited Commercial airplane license granted to a Curtiss student in Boston was given yesterday to G. Haynes "Heinie" Felton. Heinie is now ready for a passenger pilot.

Capt. Edson

Capt. Albert L. Edson, airport director, wishes it to be announced that the airport will be closed to local traffic after 5 o'clock on the nights of June 26, 27 and 28, and the airport will be closed to all traffic on these nights after 8:45 p. m. to allow drains to be installed on the north end of the field, parallel to the present Army and commercial hangars. This means that all local flying is washed out after five o'clock tonight, and anybody who wants to fly into the airport before 8:45 is welcome; anybody else is liable to be out of luck due to the laying of drains in the runways during that period.

The Curtiss Flying Service, through Lieut. Ralph T. Wickford, chief pilot, announces that parachutes are now the order in student instruction. This is the first time chutes have been used by a company at the local airport for student instruction, and Curtiss' lead is expected to be followed immediately. "Wick" is watching the weather maps carefully so that he can fly down to Nantucket with the regular evening trip, and the chances are that Wick will be on his way this afternoon without fail. The poor flying weather of the last few days have brought gray hairs to Wick's head.

"Show Girl," New Ziegfeld Musical Comedy, Takes Town by Storm

By Nicholas Young

A ZIEGFELD opening is just one of those expansive events —lustrous entertainment run into late hours. The marvel of the first presentation of "Show Girl" at the Colonial last night was that the final curtain arrived before midnight. There were extraneous features to the performance that added a touch of homely color to things generally. Mr. Al Jolson, rather well known as the husband of Ruby Keeler, crowded a front seat and gave his good wife both moral and vocal support. Getting a good song number out of Mr. Jolson without paying for it certainly was a break for Mr. Ziegfeld.

• • •

As worked out by William Anthony McGuire, "Show Girl" was a series of rambling sketches dressed up in the best of Ziegfeld i a n fashion, musically arranged by George Gers h w i n, with settings of exceptional character by Joseph Urban. Waves of color swept through the scenes; dances in gay ensembles almost submerged the quaint story of Dixie Dugan and her rise to fame. Altogether it was a great night for both the dressmaker and the dancing master. The Glorified American Girl rose to the occasion in her most condescending manner, appearing equally alluring in the heavy robes of luxury as well as in those of scantier design.

Nicholas Young

However you view it, "Show Girl" was simply Ziegfeld musical comedy cut in generous pattern. Crowds of girls, tons of scenery, whirlwind dancers—Albertina Rasch Girls—and comedians of both high and low degree. Miss Keeler made a demure Dixie Dugan, soft of voice, sharp in repartee and quite able to take care of herself, as you will know if you have read Mr. J. P. McEvoy's original story. It was with her tap dancing that Miss Keeler caught her audience and held it. Her rather thin voice accentuated her charms.

Jimmie Dugan, who was on hand to cheer his better half into a first class triumph, could not resist the temptation to join her in song. It was a novelty that will undoubtedly be denied all except persistent first nighters.

A hard-working team of vaudevillians, or possibly night club entertainers, made easy work of "Show Girl's" comedy. They were Lou Clayton, Eddie Jackson and Jimmie Durante—new faces to the big time stage. Mr. Durante was in fine fettle and led his companions a merry chase. In a single venture, "I Couldn't Be Good," Mary Charles easily captured second honors in song numbers while Duke Ellington's highly tanned band of syncopators filled one scene with the kind of jazz you'll remember.

"Show Girl" contained all the safe, sound and enduring elements of musical comedy. This insures Mr. Ziegfeld against a dull season when the piece reaches New York. Mr. Gershwin's melodies will be whistled throughout the land in another month, and Dixie Dugan will be the talk of every town. Mr. Ziegfeld has merely reached into the basket and drawn forth another winner.

FLIER SAVED BY HIS SKILL

Only the most skilful guidance of the Travel-Air biplane which he was piloting saved Fred Webber of Newport, R. I., from probably serious injury today. Webber was flying at an altitude of 500 feet over the harbor near the Army Base when he motor cut out.

He turned and tried to glide back to the airport. Unable to reach it, he guided his plane down on the rocky beach along the bulkhead of the port and landed without damage to the plane or to himself.

He pushed the plane out on a level stretch and planned to take off again as soon as he had remedied the motor trouble.

KIDDIES EAGER FOR AIDA TICKETS

Tickets which the Boston Evening American Lindbergh Club is giving for the open air musical festival "Aida" tomorrow evening at Braves Field are going fast.

The Lindbergh Club has only a limited number of these tickets for reserved seats. They are being given free to children who send in self-addressed stamped envelopes to Secretary, Lindbergh Club, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass. Any boy or girl accompanied by an adult also may obtain these tickets by calling at the Lindbergh Club office, room 203, 5 Winthrop sq. There still are a few tickets left.

A number of members of the Lindbergh Club are "missing." By that we mean they are not watching the Boston Evening American daily for their names, which will entitle them to a new Lindy aviation cloth bar which the club is giving away. Since last Saturday we have printed the names of 200 children. Out of that number about 35 have failed to answer the "call of their names."

WATCH FOR YOUR NAME

It is very important that boys and girls watch the news of the Lindbergh Club, as day by day there are many new things announced. The distribution of the Lindy bars will continue for some time.

Nathan Levine, 15 Amity st., Lynn, is one of the most active member, and a real booster of the Lindbergh Club. Nathan earned one of those lapel outfits which the club is offering children for a few minutes of their time. He received the flag only yesterday, and last evening he presented the flag to his Boy Scout Troop, No. 4, Harry Weiner, scoutmaster, at exercises in the Lynn Hebrew school. It was the last meeting of the season, and nearly 50 boys were present. Ten new members received their badges.

Boston

Virginia Crouch, Anna Martin, Vincent Lennon, Paul Thorner, Alexander Zides, Francis Cudde; Elizabeth Leger, John Herbert, Jack Quinn, Stanley Wentworth.

Boston (Suburbs)

Massachusetts

Russell Towns, Holbrook; Charles Worrick, Hingham; Harold Baker, South Hanson; Victor Miller, Hudson; Betty Anderson, Greenwood; Harold Finck, Brookline; Robert Johnson, Reykmont; Dana Holland, Gloucester; Mae Breen, Granby; Shirley Willard, Georgetown.

Irena Allen, Rockland; Susie Carver, Calais; Vincent Moody, Waldoboro; Evelyn Ward, Kennebunkport; Basil Osgood, Corinna.

Abandon Hope for Boy With Kala-Azar

New York, June 26 (INS)—Unless a miracle of medicine is performed, George Mosher, 14, victim of the vampires of Kala-Azar, the black fever, is doomed to die. That today was the opinion of doctors at Seaside Hospital, New Dorp, Staten Island. George had rallied sufficiently to go under another blood transfusion.

50 Japs Trapped in Flooded Coal Mine

Nagasaki, Japan, June 26 (AP)—Frantic efforts were made today to rescue 50 miners entrapped in the Matsushima coal mine in Kyushu, flooded during the night. One section of the mine was abandoned because of the rising water.

Mrs. Knapp to Open College for Girls

Albany, June 26—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former Secretary of State, who spent a month in the Albany penitentiary last year for misappropriation of census money, this fall will open a junior college for girls at Valatie, 17 miles from this city on the Albany-New York highway.

Mrs. Knapp announced here that she had purchased Bright Fields, the Peter J. Cullan 54-acre estate at Avalatie. She refused to reveal the purchase price. Thirty years ago Cullan purchased the estate for $130,000.

Sandino Finds Safe Haven in Mexico

Mexico City, June 26 (AP)—The Department of Interior announced today Augustino Sandino, former Nicaraguan insurgent leader, would take up his residence in the State of Yucatan, probably at Merida.

The announcement said Sandino had solicited permission to come to this country to reside and the government had not considered it inconvenient to grant permission, which "is in accordance with Mexican law and international custom."

Gives Up Search for Lost Pacific Plane

Hilo, Island of Hawaii, T. H., June 26 (AP)—The second search for the Golden Eagle, the plane driven by Jack Frost and Gordon Scott that disappeared during the Dole flight in 1927, ended today, when Ezra Frost of Pelham Manor, N. Y., requested the 11 army airplanes to discontinue it because of danger of flying over the mountains. Frost had enlisted the aid of the army in the search for his brother.

The "Pops" Tonight

The request program, always the most popular of the year, will be repeated at the Pop concert in Symphony Hall tonight. The numbers follow:

Pomp and Circumstance ..... Elgar

Nancy Made Happy by Prospect of Money From Her Rich Aunt

What Has Gone Before

Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, wants to keep her new beau, Mat Tully, all to herself. Mrs. Hollenbeck warns Nancy against her own mistake of marrying a poor man. Nancy decides to follow her mother's advice.

Nancy passes a sleepless night and the next day when Mat telephones she turns him down. She yearns for the pretty things that the girls of wealth possess. Questioned by her mother and sister, Louise, she declares she never wants to see Mat again. Nancy and Louise go to the annual house party of the rich Craigs. At the Craigs she makes up her mind to catch Jack Beamer, rich but married. That wed, married, does not trouble Nancy. He can give her what she wants. Nancy walks in the grove with Beamer, who is infatuated. Mat and Louise, searching for Nancy and Beamer, finds the two hugging and kissing 'neath the trees.

Nancy gets in at 3 a. m. and is afraid Mrs. Craig will find out about her escapade with Beamer. Louise accuses Nancy and asks her if she wants to figure in a divorce suit named by Mrs. Beamer. Mother wires for the girls to come home. No reason given.

Nancy is afraid that her mother has heard about her actions with Beamer and has called her home. Nancy tells Louise on the way home that it would be easy to fall in love with Beamer, that his wife didn't love him and that a divorce might be had. Back home Nancy is relieved to find that mother has heard nothing. They were summoned home because of the arrival of their rich Aunt Ellie.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER 8

AUNT ELLIE WATSON was sitting in the rocker in Mrs. Hollenbeck's bedroom, sipping a cup o warm milk. "I'm stout," she was accustomed to admit, "but I'm not strong. That's why I take a little nourishment every two hours. Just a bite, and a sip of milk, to keep my strength up."

She was looking as strong as usual, Nancy noticed resentfully, as she came in to kiss her, and tell her how awfully glad they were to see her, and to think that she really wanted them with her on a

Two Fake Navy Men Get 2 Months in Jail

Corrado Dalessio, alias Henry Dales of Fuller st., Everett, and Joseph T. Nadeau of Somerville st., Somerville, were each sentenced to two months at Plymouth jail today in Federal court on a charge of unlawfully wearing navy uniforms.

They were arrested by Metropolitan Police a few days ago at Revere Beach after an investigation into the activities of men dressed as sailors who were alleged to be conducting enlisted men of the navy to speakeasies and houses of ill-repute.

The Curious Quizzer

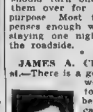
Watertown Folk Answer His Daily Question and Pose for Pictures.

THE QUESTION

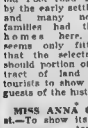
Do you think the town should set aside a section for a tourist camp for visitors?

MRS. ANDREW C. NEVINS, Boylston st.—In these days of travel by motor our town makes a most interesting stopping place for tourists. Watertown's main street is part of the old Post road used by the early settlers, and many noted families had their homes here. It seems only fitting that the selectmen should portion off a tract of land for tourists to come and are welcome guests of the historic town.

JACOB N. PANJAN, Dexter ave.—The more tourists coming to our town the better business we will have. Watertown is fast losing its population, and in a short time all the land will be taken for building purposes. I understand there are a few tracts suitable for tourist camps, and the town authorities should turn one of them over for that purpose. Most tourists have expenses enough without paying for staying one night in a camp off the roadside.



MISS ANNA C. RUSSO, Laurel st.—To show its welcome to visitors from other states, Watertown could do nothing better than to furnish accommodations for tourists. A plot of ground should be taken over by the town and advertised as for visitors who are limited to short stays. Tents, running water and sanitary buildings should be installed by the town as the expense



JAMES A. CROWLEY, Spruce st.—There is a good location in the west part of the town which should be made into a free camp for visiting tourists. The business men would benefit by the purchase of necessary provisions and wearing apparel. Now is a good time for the town fathers to set aside a section of the land for visitors to the Massachusetts Bay exposition next year. Anybody who knows the history of the State knows that Watertown was one of the first settlements

Gigantic skyscrapers, each a city in itself, supplying business, social and recreational requirements of the dwellers therein; communities where super-blocks would eliminate all traffic problems and where children can go to school without ever crossing a motor road. These were predicted by speakers at the Convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at the Hotel Statler today.

J. Soul Waterfield of Chicago declared in the course of his speech that the buildings of the future will be "bigger and bigger and higher and higher" than any that stand today.

"Every adequate building of the future," he continued, "must supply service within itself that will take care of business, social and recreational needs."

He then outlined a word picture of those super buildings. A man could leave home, go to work, attend the theater or dance and dine, if he cared, without having to leave the confines of the building in which he lived.

SUPER-BLOCKS FOR TOWNS

"Town planning has already reached the stage," he said, "where suburban communities must be built in super-blocks. Houses will have two front doors and no back entrances. Each door will open into a park that will surround the building. There will be no sidewalks, but paths would be provided for pedestrians that would allow them to travel without interfering with traffic on the motor roads.

"In a community of these super-blocks children could safely attend school without the present danger of death or injury."

A spirited discussion between representatives of the real estate association and representatives of outdoor advertising enlivened the morning session

FILENE ON GOOD WILL.

Stricter laws regarding the location of billboards were urged by speakers of the real estate association who declared that scenic beauty belonged to the people, and should not be spoiled by billboards.

Speakers for the outdoor advertising companies insisted that there were already too many laws restricting outdoor advertising.

E. A. Filene, president of the William Filene's Sons Company, told the convention that good will was one of the first requisites for success in the real estate business.

"Good will is essentially a matter of confidence," he said, "between customer and realtor based on the element of value, quality, style and service"

Today was the busiest of the convention, no fewer than five groups of realtors holding business sessions.

The Pittsburgh delegation to the convention visited Cambridge this morning, and in the absence of Mayor Quinn, were greeted by Edward Counihan, the mayor's secretary.

Counihan presented Miss Jean Stotler, daughter of C. C. Stotler, general chairman of the convention, with a gavel made from the wood of the historic Washington elm. This is the last relic of the old tree, Counihan said, that would be given as a souvenir

Wife Gets Custody of Children for Month

Judge Dolan in Suffolk Probate court today decided that Mrs. Katharyn S. Allen of Norwood, whose separate support suit against Herbert S. Allen, manager of a Boston hotel, was recently dismissed, may have custody of her two children until August 1.

At that time Allen is given the right to take the children to Bedford, N. H., and return them to Boston before the opening of the school here. When in Boston, Mrs. Allen is to be permitted to see the children each week, and her husband is to pay her $30 a week for the support of the children while in her charge. She also was allowed $500 for counsel fees.

B. & A. to Rebuild Old Engine House

The Boston & Albany Railroad will rebuild the older of its two engine houses at West Springfield, built in 1903, the road announced today, at a cost of $565,000. The work is needed to house locomotives of the larger modern type.

2 RICH MEN IN THIEF CHASE

Clad only in pajamas, two Swampscott society men early today took part in the roundup of a burglar who had broken into and robbed two houses, attempted to enter two others, and had drawn a revolver on Mrs. Bessie Cutler of 3 Shepherd ave., daughter of the late Andrew G. Preston, head of the United Fruit Company.

The men who played a large part in the capture of the housebreaker were Mrs. Cutler's husband, Harold S. Cutler, and Preston's grandson, Richard O. Preston, 18.

The prisoner, who gave the name of John Kenney, 45, of New York, was identified by finger prints from the State House as Arthur Demosis, 42, of Merrimack st., Haverhill. In Lynn court he was held in $3,000 on a charge of burglary while armed.

RECOVER $1000 LOOT

Accompanied by Capt. James Kennedy of the Swampscott police, Cutler plunged into the swamp and drove Kenney into the waiting arms of young Preston and police officers.

Silverware valued at $4000, stolen from the homes of Cutler and Mrs. Henrietta Longley of 121 Atlantic ave., Swampscott, was recovered in caches where the burglar had hidden it.

Mrs. Longley was awakened by a noise in her room and discovered a man going through her dresser. She screamed and he fled through a window.

SECOND ALARM SENT IN

The police were notified and Capt. Kenney with a squad of officers hurried to the house and searched the neighborhood for an hour without success. Returning to the police station, they were told another alarm had come in from Mrs. Cutler a quarter of a mile from the Longley house.

Capt. Kennedy and the squad raced to the Cutler house, where they were joined by Cutler and young Preston in pajamas, who said they had seen the burglar fleeing in the direction of Palmer's beach.

Trailed by the Cutler car, driven by its owner and with young Preston in the front seat beside him, the police machine sped to the beach, where no trace of the fugitive was found.

The search was then continued to the swamp, a short distance away, during the noise made by someone passing through the bushes was audible. With the swamp surrounded, Capt. Kennedy and Cutler plunged in and drove the man into the arms of Preston and Patrolman Samuel Hooper.

Police say they found silverware taken from Cutler's home in Kenney's possession, and after he had been taken to the house Mrs. Cutler identified him as the man who was in her room.

Newton Center Neighborhood Is Aroused Over Dog Fight

Audrey Jane Hall, three years, of Athelstane rd., Newton, shown in staff photo with her canine playmate, Major, English setter, and on her right John Sloet with his dog, Dooley. Major, innocent bystander in a scrap between Dooley, and Zan, a police dog, has been ordered restrained. Zan, not in the picture, met the same fate. Dooley escaped the ban.

Athelstone Rd. Section Not as Peaceful as Before Dog Rivals Battled

The peace and quiet of Athelstone rd in Newton Center has been rudely upset and the police called in because of a dog fight, which took place Monday. It was verified today that the Newton police have ordered two dogs restrained—one a principal in the fight, and the other an "innocent bystander."

The principals in the dog fight which shattered the serenity of the neighborhood were

Comey, the owner of big Zan, is nursing a badly bitten right hand received when he tried to pull Zan away from Dooley, who is a lighter weight compared to his opponent. Dooley is convalescing with one eye in a sling.

Zan has been ordered restrained by the Newton police, the result they say, of complaints of a neighbor. And Major, the gentle English setter owned by the Halls, who was not even present at the fight according to witnesses, and suffered a strong nibb, has also been ordered restrained Comey, according to the police, defended his Zan against charges that the dog was vicious and retaliated by asserting that the Hall dog was vicious

Although Patrolman Dan MacLoughlin said that he told Comey he would have to restrain the dog Comey professed ignorance of receiving such an order. No police ban has been laid upon Dooley, he says, with his head in a bandage, which shows little interest as yet in venturing out in the direction of the much-feared Zan.

The story of the fight which stirred the "classy" neighborhood was told by Mrs. Sloet, owner of Dooley. "Dooley was on the lawn," she said, "playing with the children. The little girl was petting him, when up came the big German police dog, owned by the Comeys, and attacked Dooley, who is only half his size. It looks as though the dog were jealous because the Hall children were making of our Dooley. But Dooley gave him a good fight, just the same. The Hall children were frightened and the whole neighborhood was in an uproar. Somebody called the police. Before they got here, the owner of the police dog came up and tried to pull his dog off, but he got his hand all cut up."

Mrs. Hall, owner of Major, the "innocent bystander" in the fray, admitted that the dog fight took place. The children were unfrightened, she said, adding, "The are afraid of the police dog. Mrs. Hall admitted that she had some words" with neighbor Comey as a result of the dog fight Comey asserted, according to Mrs. Hall "If my dog is vicious, then your dog is vicious" "That's ridiculous," said Mrs Hall to Mr Comey "Why, he is as gentle as a lamb." "Tum on, Major," said little Audrey-Jane Hall aged three as she grabbed major by one shaggy ear Major responded by trying to lick the child's face

Mr. Comey, although convalescing from the wounds inflicted when he tried to separate the dogs, defended his Zan from the barrage of charges brought against the big police dog When Officer McLaughlin called at the Comey home to investigate, Comey said, according to the officer: "Come on in, the dog wouldn't hurt anybody"

Zan seemed peaceable enough, said Officer McLaughlin But he looked at Comey's bandaged hand and told Comey that since a complaint had been made against the dog he had better restrain him Comey declined to say much about the matter when interviewed "Just a dog fight," he said, "The hand? Oh, only a scratch," he said as he gingerly lifted a corner of the bandage Comey had just shared some ice cream with a neighbor but as for the Halls—well, the Halls and the Comeys never speak as they pass by—at least not just yet

Driver Freed in Officer's Death

Chester I. Brown of Standish st, Cambridge, in East Cambridge court today was absolved of blame in connection with the death of Patrolman George T. Barrington of the Cambridge police. Barrington was struck by Brown's car on Massachusetts ave., North Cambridge, and died a few hours later No probable cause was found on a manslaughter charge and he was acquitted of operating so as to endanger the public

James F. Miner of Westerly st., Winchester, charged with non-support of his wife, Margaret M., of Mystic st., Arlington, and their minor child was ordered to pay $7.50 per week for the child's support.

The domestic help problems to solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

MILLIONS BARED BY OLD WILL

Thirty-eight years after his death an inventory of the property of Joseph B. Thomas, pioneer in the sugar business in Boston, revealed that he had left an estate valued at $5,433,356, of which $1,295,456 was in real property. This fact was made known in the Suffolk Registry of Probate today.

Washington B. Thomas, a son, who was one of the trustees, never made an inventory or filed an account of his father's property, as in 1891 such was not demanded under the law. When Washington Thomas died a few weeks ago, however, the courts refused to take action on the will until an inventory had been made

Rush to Escape High Cost of Citizenship

Schmeling Looks Like Real Fighter Says Jack Conway

BOXES LIKE OLD TIME DEMPSEY

By JACK CONWAY

LAKEWOOD, N. J. June 26 [illegible] for the Milk Fund.

It was the first [illegible] had seen the Ger[illegible] action. He is [illegible] a serious threat [illegible] vacated title. [illegible] much a fighting man.

Schmeling is blessed with one of the best right hands in the boxing game. He shoots it [illegible] the speed of a bullet. When Herr Max landed he had but wrecked his sparring partner.

WHEN I came here to look Schmeling [illegible] see him do enough [illegible] enable me to [illegible] Monte [illegible].

I had been told [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] dinary [illegible] but [illegible] has a good left hand and jab also, looks with it really well.

The German keeps coming forward every second he is in the ring. He shuffled around on his feet well enough and bobbed like the Manassa Mauler of old. It is difficult to [illegible] shot at Schmeling [illegible] count of his [illegible]. He is no more open to [illegible] Schmeling boxed a round with Herman Heller [illegible] Maxie Gallagher who is [illegible] of heavyweight and [illegible] Leo Lomski and [illegible] who was hit on the chin by an [illegible] hand [illegible] socked on the mouth [illegible] right hand [illegible] at the cut Lucas [illegible].

IT was announced that Schmeling weighed 188 [illegible] when he completed his [illegible]. Fight sources [illegible] the [illegible] learned that he [illegible] pounds which [illegible] respectable him to battle Paulino on [illegible] terms.

Benny Touchstone who was hired as a sparring partner by Promoter Joseph Scheuding [illegible] looked Schmeling over. Benny despite his dislike for Paulino, believes the Basque will win tonight. He figures he is too tough for Schmeling.

Max is one of the most confident boxers I have ever talked with before an important bout. He is a big play boy and [illegible] like a youngster on [illegible] a boxer who [illegible] most important [illegible] tomorrow night.

There is a lot of [illegible] about the Schmeling [illegible] supporters of Max [illegible] will drop Paulino [illegible] tonight. My opinion is also [illegible] the boxing writers who have been [illegible] with Schmeling. They look for the German to [illegible] Paulino and look for him to [illegible] Paulino.

PETE REILLY former manager of [illegible] the ring [illegible] Joe Jeannette [illegible] George [illegible] end in the [illegible] is in charge [illegible] the tennis [illegible] means that [illegible] return to the box[illegible] age of Schmeling.

Schmeling's fine showing in the closing days of his training has sent the betting odds [illegible] even money. A week ago Paulino was a heavy favorite. But now many keen ring [illegible] are picking the German to win.

Back in New York this writer found a [illegible] Pete [illegible] ets. William F. [illegible] president of Madison Square Garden Corporation, declared there [illegible] $250,000 in the box office and that the show should draw $300,000.

Joe Boynton, in charge of the ticket sale, asserted the gat would probably hit $275,000.

Paulino has completed his training also.

The rival heavyweights will take things easy today and will be prepared to furnish the best battle of their respective careers when they step to the firing line tomorrow night.

Leonard Hailed as Greatest Fighter When He Defeated Kilbane, Says Tad

By TAD

"There's the greatest fighter the world ever saw," said Abe Attell as he pointed toward Benny Leonard who had just finished Johnny Kilbane in the third round with a right-hander to the chin.

We all have our favorites, but many a Kilbane adherent on the night of July 14, 1917, threw his hands in the air as he proclaimed the Bronx boy king.

No champion in our time had ever been so far outclassed as Johnny Kilbane was that night by Benny Leonard. If you had gone to that fight not knowing who Kilbane was you would have sworn that he had never seen a boxing glove before, his showing was so poor.

The fight was held at the American League Park in Philadelphia. The ring, an eighteen-foot affair, was pitched directly over the home plate. Thirty or forty newspapermen sat around it. The spectators, numbering 15,000 or more, sat in the grandstand and bleachers.

Four bright arc lamps were over the ring and made a fine light to view the quarrel by.

Kilbane was first to cross the field from the dugout. He was wildly cheered as he drew off the little green sweater he wore close about his neck.

He hopped into the arena and walked over to where Jim Corbett sat to chat a bit. Abe Attell greeted the diamond then and waited in Johnny's corner to shake his hand.

A moment later another big cheer went up and Benny Leonard, wrapped up in a bright purple robe, stepped into the ring. He immediately walked over to Kilbane's corner and shook the latter's hand.

A box of khaki-colored gloves was tossed into the center of the ring and the seconds soon upholstered the mitts of their men.

Johnny Dundee also produced and did the old hand-shaking thing to both boys.

Joe Humphries introduced both men and announced that Leonard weighed 133 pounds at 8 o'clock, while Kilbane tipped the beam at 127.

The gong sounded and the two greatest little men in the world started to fight.

Right off the bat Leonard sneaked over a left that sent Kilbane a head back and a mighty roar went up.

Benny danced a step toward Kilbane, then a step back. It is his feinting style. He was on his toes all the time. He jabbed Johnny again, much to the latter's surprise, and a tiny stream of blood trickled from the Cleveland boy's mouth. The Leonard admirers howled with glee.

Kilbane then tried his shifting feint in order to open Leonard's guard. He danced from side to side, feinting with the right and then with the left, but he might just as well have tried to scare the eagle on a silver dollar.

That took much of the heart out of Kilbane.

KILBANE PUNCH DRUNK REELING TOWARD HIS CORNER AS THE TOWEL WAS THROWN IN

The Leonard crowd cheered themselves hoarse as the latter repeated a moment later with another. The bell found Kilbane smiling, but running second.

Kilbane came out for the second round with a more serious expression on his face. As Leonard jabbed with a left, Kilbane caught his arm and drew him close. They wrestled a bit and Johnny let fly a terrific uppercut which landed flush upon Leonard's chin.

Instead of falling, Leonard merely stepped back and popped a left to his opponent's mouth, drawing the blood again. They danced a bit, and Leonard repeated the punch.

They wrestled again and once more Kilbane landed a right-hand uppercut, and it was then time for his admirers to howl, which they did.

Kilbane, a bit more confident now, swung a vicious left for Benny's head and missed. He swung a right and missed, and then Leonard ripped a left to the stomach. He stepped back and busted a pip of a left to the mouth, and the blood ran down from Kilbane's mouth to his neck.

He tried to wipe it away with his glove, but made an awful smear of it. The bell gave Kilbane a chance to be washed off. Leonard walked right over to Kilbane as the bell clanged for the third and swung a left that missed its mark at least two feet.

Kilbane held until the referee broke them. Then he jumped into the air, a la Dundee, and let go two jabs. He missed, and as he was squaring himself again for another attack Leonard's left caught him on the ear and he went sprawling to the ropes in Benny's corner.

There was a wild yell from the crowd. It looked like a killing. Kilbane recovered himself and "came up smiling." It wasn't the smile of a winner. It was a still smile. His eyes were glassy as he danced unsteadily upon his feet.

Leonard, cool and calculating, eased around like a cat. He had his man and he was in no hurry. He let Kilbane lead to feel his strength. Johnny led and missed. He was weak and his aim was poor.

Leonard coolly pushed him away and set himself for the killing. Kilbane led again. It was a weak lead. Leonard crashed a right over on the ear and Kilbane fell to the floor, trying to save himself by grabbing his opponent. He was up in a jiffy.

The place was in an uproar now. Then came a clinch. Kilbane's seconds yelled for him to hang on. Leonard's seconds yelled for their man to push Kilbane away.

The crowd howled for a knockout. They wanted someone down. Anybody down would do. The fight crowd wants a finish.

The referee broke the men and Kilbane danced away just as a drunken man would. Blood was streaming down his chin from his cut mouth.

He backed away and looked toward his corner with a glassy stare. He forgot that Leonard was facing him. He wanted instructions. He was smiling, but out standing up. His seconds yelled to him to watch Leonard.

He faced Leonard again. Benny feinted with the left for the stomach, and as Kilbane threw out his arm to clinch, a right-hander caught him flush upon the chin and he fell down, his body right at Leonard's feet.

Everybody was yelling as the referee stepped over to count the prostrate man out.

Kilbane got to his hands and knees immediately and started to get his hands up as the bell rang.

It seemed as though every one was yelling at the top of his voice. Kilbane's seconds carried him to his chair and he kept muttering: "What's it about? What's the trouble? What is it?"

He was a sorry sight. Johnny Kilbane, the cleverest featherweight we had ever seen. His face was covered with blood and his eyes glassy and apparently looking nowhere in particular.

RAP CORNELL FOR DELAY

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26—Cornell's oarsmen have come in for sweeping criticism at the hands of the collegiate rowing colony which left town after the wildest varsity race in the history of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta.

The consensus of oarsmen and rowing coaches heaped the blame on Cornell for holding the big race back an hour and resulted in making towed in water so rough that four of the crews were swamped and only five crossed the finish line, all badly waterlogged.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

LAKEWOOD, N. J., June 26—Mr. Boston asked Pete Reilly to explain Joe Jacobs' new hat.

"Now that Joe is one of Schmeling's managers he is trying to add color to his makeup," said Pete. "I understand Joe got the lid in Berlin and likes it almost as much as he did the beer."

ASKED Mr. Boston how he had enjoyed the trip to Lakewood.

"I found the place with the aid of a couple of guides," replied the veteran. "I spent the night in New York, where I met Bill Thomans, who manages the Forrest Hotel. When he found I was coming to Lakewood he insisted on driving me here. He even left a special call for me so that I wouldn't miss breakfast.

"Thomans told me to be sure to have grapefruit for breakfast. It is the rage in New York right now. Orange juice, prunes and other fruits are being passed up. Some chorus girl or shimmy dancer has tipped the world to eat grapefruit and get thin.

"So I inhaled grapefruit. Then to the Garden to see Walter St. Dennis, demon publicity expert. Walter says he has shattered all world's records for writing copy on this show. And I think he is right.

"Met Francis Albertanti, secretary to Bill Carey, who tipped me Schmeling would hit Paulino on the button. He didn't name the round.

"TOOK the elevator up to Bill Carey's new private office on the sixth floor and chatted about the fight with him. Bill's only care in life seemed to be in getting me close to the ring. Which didn't cause me any annoyance.

"Carey looks for a gate of $500,000 and believes the winner against Sharkey in September will draw $1,000,000.

"Joe Boynton, box office chief, declared Schmeling is a better card than Paulino and that if he knocks out the Basque that the Sharkey tussle would be a sellout anywhere.

"BACK to the Forrest, where I parked myself in Bill Thomans' car. From there to the Holland tunnel and over to Jersey. After passing through a dozen rainstorms, I mitted Schmeling. Just saw the kid work out and he impresses me as having the goods.

"Make no mistake about Schmeling's ability to sock with his right hand. He also has quite a left duke. The kid is jammed with confidence and figures he will tip Paulino over.

"EVERYTHING is quiet and businesslike here. Joe Jacobs and Pete Reilly have been tangled up with important fights for years and many believe they will outgeneral Paulino and his band of managers.

"Jimmy Dawson of the Times and Harry Grayson of the Telegram who have been with Schmeling during his training grind believe the German is a cinch to bowl Paulino over.

"'Max is not only a second Dempsey in looks,' said Grayson, 'but he also fights like the old Tiger did when he was knocking the opposition bowlegged.'"

FOUR ROUNDERS SPELL ACTION

Staging four-round contests, especially nine of them, sounds action That is why Matchmaker Lou Penney of the Cycle A. C. has planned for such an evening next to the eight-round battle between Joe Accetta of Providence and Johnny Caspar of this city at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night. The clam digger and the Hub man will furnish the main attraction.

With such a program the seaside organization truthfully comes by its name, "Nickel a Round Club," the object of which is to please the followers of pugilism with an array of talent that enters the ring with the sole purpose of giving their best. What more can be asked?

Accetta is training at Sharon Gardens, at Providence, and Monday night vaulted Everton, N. J., to see his opponent in action against Andy Callahan of Lawrence.

B & N CREW IN TRAINING

Henley, Eng., June 26—Members of the Browne and Nichols school eight-oared crew of Cambridge, Mass., entrants in the Henley regatta next week, are taking both morning and afternoon workouts.

Coach Greenhalge said he was highly satisfied with the progress the crew was making and expressed confidence that the oarsmen would give a good account of themselves when the regatta gets underway on July 3.

Greenhalge says the crew had found English food and cooking suitable, but remarked upon the lack of variety in vegetables and fruit as compared with meals in the United States. With the exception of two members of the crew who experienced some illness for a while after their arrival the boys are now thoroughly acclimatised and in fine fettle.

Gorilla Jones Wins Unpopular Victory

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

GORILLA JONES of Akron, Ohio, was awarded a very unpopular verdict at Braves Field, and the gathering of boxing fans protested wildly when the decision was handed out at the end of 10 rounds. The show, which was run under the auspices of the Boston Garden, gave the winner a gold belt and the world's colored middleweight title.

The bout had no championship color, although both boys battled the best they knew how and the verdict went against the grain of the cash customers. It looked as though McVey had six out of the 10 rounds. He stopped numerous well meant punches which Jones fired at him, while on the other hand the New York boxer had Jones bleeding from the mouth with left and right hand socks. Mc-Vey time and again spun Jones around the ring with his fast attack.

Owing to the Braves-Phillies double header the boxing started late and the main bout was the second on the program. Following the feature contest the gathering was driven into the stands by a heavy shower and electric storm. Then two bouts followed and in the middle of the contest between Eddie Adonis and a negro boxer by the name of Snowflake it started to pour, driving the telegraphers and writers under the ring, while the fans made a mad dash for the grandstand for shelter.

Red Affinito of New York defeated Horatio Villa of Gloucester, the fisherman quitting in the second round, a body punch causing him to send in his resignation.

Concord Books Game With Somerville

The Concord Town baseball team, through its manager, Daniel J. Curtin, has booked a game with the Somerville baseball club for Friday evening on the Emerson playground diamond, Concord Center, at 6.15 o'clock.

CHAMP WINS IN COLLEGE GOLF

Deal, N. J., June 26 (AP)—Maurice McCarthy of Georgetown, defending champion, had little trouble disposing of T. S. Panaccion, Penn State football tackle, 6 up and 4 to play, in the opening match play round of the intercollegiate golf tournament.

The first real upset came when Chuck Hunter of the University of Washington eliminated Melville Newman of Yale, 6 and 5.

TWINS BATTLE BAD WEATHER

By BERNICE AND PHYLLIS ZITENFIELD

Dover, England, June 26 (Special Cable)—Don't think that the weather is all we have to contend with in our preparations for the Channel swim.

At Margate, a neighboring seaside town, the famous trainer, Jabez Wolfe, who is himself an old Channel swimmer, is training a young English girl to swim the treacherous Channel waters, and we are daily apprised of her doings.

Even Bill Kellingly had an 11 year-old girl—imagine that in training, but he gave her up. After all, it does rather stretch the imagination to think that a mere child might really be successful in a Channel swim. This is said in no depreciation of any one else's efforts but in the grim knowledge of what it takes to perform the feat.

The weather, however, continues chilly, with intermittent hail and rain, which has set us back in our training. Our spirits have not been dampened in even the slightest degree for we have learned to wear weather conditions sensibly and not take them to heart too much.

Carrigan at Loss to Pick Pitcher

PHILADELPHIA, June 26—Today's another day and a better one to spoil. A single engagement with the terrifying Athletics is on the card and, maybe, as it's only one contest victory will perch on the Carrigan banner, that is if nature isn't too much droop in the said gonfalon to afford a safe roosting place.

Manager Bill is at his wits' end [illegible] to pick a winning pitcher. Big Ed [illegible] ing far more life and ginger than any team ever piloted by the eminent Mr. McGillicuddy. In [illegible] respect it is rare for superior to the Athletics of old, million dollar infield and all. That was not a superior ball club with players who had just a little too much class for their contemporaries. They were performers of the genuine goods, as well as salted baseball men.

Their ability to beat the Yankees has worked wonders with the Athletics. They are out there, every day with a line of chatter calculated to get on the nerves of the most seasoned campaigners in the American League circuit and are pestering numerous others. Great is the victory habit, when you once get it right.

HELEN WILLS AND TILDEN VICTORS

By F. A. MURAY

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Wimbledon, England, June 26.—By [illegible] a great and easy step toward the finals of the men's and women's singles in the Wimbledon tennis championships today when he eliminated D. Prenn, one of the best of the German contingent of invaders in straight sets, 6-0, 6-0, 6-4.

After Tilden had romped through the first two sets with such consummate ease that he had time to amuse the spectators by tricky strokes that completely baffled his opponent, Prenn drew upon his reserve in the final frame and forced the lank American to extra games before the match could be won.

By virtue of this victory Tilden enters the fourth round of play.

Miss Mae Sutton Bundy, who this season is making her first Wimbledon appearance since 1923 eliminated Miss E. H. Harvey, a young and powerful opponent, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

The match was the sensation of the day. Although the score zoned at four all in the third set, Mrs. Bundy, Wimbledon champion in 1907, called up her reserves and stood through the last two games which gave her the match hold on her vigorous opponent to a standstill with her flashing play.

Cheng's elimination from the [illegible] was followed by the defeat of Miss Marjorie Morrill, [illegible] young American, who lost to Eileen Bennett, the English [illegible] 6-3, 6-1.

P. Landry of France eliminated H. G. Lee of England 5-7, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Wilbur F. Coen, young Kansas City star, went down to defeat at the hands of C. Rousset of France, by score of 6-4, 10-8, 6-3. The Kansas City youngster played with great tenacity and persistence, but the Frenchman's superior experience was too much for him, although Junior forced both the second and third sets to extra games.

Brugnon was handicapped today by a stiff neck when he stood in need of all his brilliancy and agility. The Englishman played a dazzling game, flashing about the court with the speed of a rocket. His stroke and play were perfect. He settled with the Frenchman in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-0.

ALLISON WINS.

Wilmer Allison, another of the five Americans remaining in the men's singles when play was resumed today, also came through in the third round successfully by defeating J. D. F. Whiteley, the English International, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

An early American victory was also chalked up today in the women's singles when Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated Mrs. John Hill of England, 6-4, 6-2, in a second round match.

J. Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian defeated the late world Campbell Irish Davis Cup player 6-3, 8-6, 6-3.

Miss Betty Nuthall, chief British hope for final honors in the women's singles, defeated a formidable opponent in Miss Round in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, in their second round match.

Also in the second round, Mlle. K. Lauman of Holland defeated Mrs. N. Lyle of Britain, 8-6, 6-1; Dora Boothby, England beat Miss Y. Sigart of Belgium, 6-2, 6-1.

SENORITA WINS

Senorita Lili de Alvarez, Spanish star, defeated Miss [illegible] of Italy 6-3, 6-4 in a hard fought match. The Italian woman carried the game to advantage on a pink jockey cap to shade her eyes from the sun. She came back strong in the latter's stiff battle, winning almost every game to deuce.

Mme. Mathieu of France eliminated Mrs. P. J. Whitney of England 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. L. R. C. Michell of England defeated Miss E. H. Clarke of Wightman cup team captain, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Miss Clarke eliminated Edith Cross, Young Berkely, Oxford star, in a three sets with Littleton Rogers of Ireland.

J. C. Gregory, English international, defeated R. Rolland of France in a stubborn four set contest 2-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

Rogers, who had not been considered particularly a formidable opponent, so extended Cochet that the match went to five sets, and Cochet had to use every means he had to snatch victory in the final game. The score was 3-7, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3, 6-2.

John Hennessey joined Tilden and Allison as American survivors of the third round by defeating Capt. J. H. Frowen of the Indian army 6-2, 6-1, 7-5. Hennessey's service was splendid, and he played a fine steady game to win over Frowen, a flashing player.

H. Timmer of Holland entered the fourth round by defeating R. De Buzelet of France 2-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5. The match was one of the most remarkable of the tournament, Timmer scoring his victory by taking three straight sets after having dropped two to the speedy Frenchman.

SEMI-FINALS ON IN LONGWOOD COURT PLAY

By JOHN GILROY

All the social pomp and [illegible] will be added [illegible] the semi-finals at the Longwood Cricket Club courts this morning.

Miss Marjorie Gladman of Southern California who is favored to win the tournament had an easy time on her match with Miss Eleanor Curtis, winning, 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Constance Cheney of Simsbury was given a hard battle by Miss Polly Palfrey but managed to win out, 8-6, 6-1.

Louise Sheerin and Marjorie Sachs of Radcliffe came through in their matches. Miss Sachs came close to an upset at the hands of Miss Nancy Jaynes but won out in the third set after a long battle.

SIX TWI TEAMS DOING BATTLE

By DICK McSWEENEY

A trio of Twi League games is scheduled for this evening.

Taunton meets Quincy at Fore River Field. Reading collides with Bridgewater at Fallon Field, Middleboro and Dorchester pass a visit to Salem.

The Taunton club has been in the thrust for only a short time, but it promises to give the older clubs plenty of trouble. In some quarters, Taunton is picked to be the winner of the second half of the Twi League race.

Higginbotham at second base for Taunton is performing in brilliant style. Charlie Murphy, better known as the star outfielder of Boston College football team, is doing well in the Taunton box.

Murphy will draw the batting assignment for tonight's fray at Quincy. The Giants' club is still leading the pack and will be ready to set Taunton back and thereby keep its grip on a lead which is very slim.

Andrews will box for Quincy tonight. He has been hurling [illegible] good ball in recent games and should give Taunton a battle. Other fights in connection with the [illegible] Lou Stecker will go to the [illegible] for ten rounds and [illegible] entered [illegible] a near-[illegible] bout with experience.

Winged Foot Course Exacting, Declares Horton Smith

GOOD IRON SHOTS ARE NEEDED

By BILL GRIMES

"ALTHOUGH there has been some fine practice rounds reported this week at Winged Foot," said Horton Smith, the 1929 sensation, who is expected to figure prominently in the United States open championship which starts at Mamaroneck tomorrow, "I think this course will offer one of the finest all-round tests ever placed before an American open field.

"Before I played Winged Foot I had heard the boys complaining about the vast amount of luck in the fairways," continued the Missourian, "and I was pleased to learn that that type of the treacherous growth has disappeared. The long dry spell killed the clover and thereby eliminated considerable trouble and extra worry.

"From what I have seen of Winged Foot I believe it is one of the most exciting courses I have ever played. There are few courses calling for as much length and accuracy with second shots as Winged Foot.

"During the championship length off the tees will carry its usual reward and, to a certain extent, be obligatory. Long and perfectly directed iron shots known will be the biggest assets to have at one's command at Winged Foot.

"On most of the par 4 holes, long irons are needed to get home. These shots must be played to tightly guarded greens which are smaller in area than the usual putting surface. The tragedy lies into the greens and there is grave danger if a ball is even slightly off the line on some of those holes. The putting areas are so limited on some of the greens that the boys are going to be confronted with more than the usual number of three tough ten to fifteen footers."

"IN MY opinion there is nothing easy about the short holes at Winged Foot. In fact, I think that the 10th hole is one of the toughest one shoters I ever faced. It is a long iron to a green of a narrow green, which, if missed, will prove disastrous to even the best in the battle for Johnny Farrell's title and No. 3, which measures 217 yards, is a tough three for anybody.

"It is beyond my conception what would happen to any one some heavy rain during the championship. I cannot imagine anything more fatal than attempting to push shots on to the greens from small and generously trapped greens especially out of clover which would come back to the fairways in the rain. The entrances to the greens at Winged Foot are very narrow and it would take the sharpest of sharp shooters to keep their second shots so as to have them run up those paths after hitting short.

"There is much speculation as to what will be necessary to win at Mamaroneck. I don't know what figures are going to bring home the title but I do know that I will need more strokes than 296 to complete the 72 holes because the course is faster now than when I played it for the first time last week. There is a long run on the end of well hit shots, which simplifies matters as to reaching home, and, obviously, will reduce the scoring."

"IN summing up, I would say that the scoring at Winged Foot will be higher than predicted, due to the rareness with which the short holes will be 'deuced.' Bear in mind that nothing lower than a No. 3 iron can be used at any short hole at Winged Foot and that every green must be carried. Absolutely perfect physical and mental condition will be necessary in order to be sure of the finish. The finishing holes are not only exacting but long and may prove the downfall of one likely champion next Saturday.

"The 16th, 17th and 18th (last championship holes) are the dormont and Olympic holes but being an unknown I have nothing to worry about but my skill, which proved to be enough trouble. Because I won some tournaments last winter and early this spring, I must now pay the toll demanded for success in any branch of sport. Other than the fact that you must expect and accept these conditions past performances are of little value in a championship and, especially in golf, champions are made or broke by a combination of skill and luck."

Roberts Named as N. Y. U. Fresh Coach

New York, June 26.—The appointment of Arthur Roberts of Holyoke, Mass., as freshman football, basketball and baseball coach at New York University has been announced. Roberts, a three-sport man at N. Y. U., was graduated this year from the school of commerce.

FORMER AND PRESENT CHAMPS

Twixt Tee and Cup -:- By Bill Grimes

Unlike most of the contestants who are warming up at Winged Foot, Horton Smith is making no serious attempts to score low before the start of the championship. He is conserving himself with brushing on his game and acquiring a thorough knowledge of the Mamaroneck west course.

Before each shot, Smith takes an exact measurement of the distance and then decides what should be termed a better ball. Smith, who played preparing for a championship make a practice of playing two, three and sometimes four balls and therefore there is little significance attached to these rounds, from a scoring viewpoint.

Mrs Donald M Belcher and Perley Chase of the Worcester Country Club started to defend their club pair mixed foursome championship of the State town at Weston against Mrs. G. L. Wrenn, 2d, and Phillip Wrenn, of Dedham.

If the play at Weston runs true to the draw, Miss Belcher and Perley Chase will be opposed by Mrs. R. H. Baker, Jr., the district champion, and Rayner M Gardiner, former president of the Massachusetts Golf Association.

Miss Frances Stebbins and Win Trowbridge are in the upper half of the draw in the Weston classic, and any team winning a decision over this Plymouth combination played real golf.

The Amesbury Country Club has invited the New England Professional Golfers' Organization to play a return engagement at their course next season. Amesbury donated $150 in extra prize money for the pros to shoot for last Monday, and they have agreed to raise the ante to 200 for the next amateur-pro tournament.

Jack Murray, the former well-known major league pitcher should make a showing in the National Public Links championship in St Louis. Murray will shoot any course in the middle 70s, and he has had plenty of competitive experience in all branches of athletics to be at his best under pressure.

The Scarboro players, who will accompany Jack Murray to St. Louis, are Fred Harmon, Harry Fogg, Angus Campbell and Ronald Watt.

Although Eddie Murphy of Charles River and Harvard need up 52 strokes to make the inward journey in the first qualifying round of the Intercollegiates at the Hollywood Country Club, in Deal, N. J., he was game enough to turn in his score. Murphy must have encountered plenty of trouble for he has not enough had shots in his bag to need 52 for any nine holes.

The annual week-end tournaments of the Scituate Country Club will start next Saturday. As was the case last season, the prizes have been donated by the members and according to Dan Killfer, chairman of the golf committee, Scituate will have its greatest season.

The Hatherly Country Club is preparing to defend the "Mayflower," emblematic of South Shore League team match championship, which the Monit team took from Cohasset last year. The South Shore League team matches will start on July 9, with Hatherly at Duxbury, Cohasset at Scituate, Crow Point at Plymouth and Marshfield at South Shore.

Bill Eaton, the old Harvard tackle, will captain the Scituate Country Club four ball team, but with such an array of young talent as his son Charlie, the junior champion of the State, Gerald Moore and John Slattery, Bill may not make his letter.

Tom Sparga and Harry Nicoll of Haverhill thought pretty well of themselves as a four ball team until they bumped into E. J. Parker and Frank Lalle of Amesbury. The Haverhill pair went over to Amesbury looking for trouble and ran into a 59 better ball. Nicoll was 73 on his own ball, but one hole was all that he won.

Among those stars who failed to play out in the Belmont Spring open was Lewis Grimball, who tossed in the sponge at the 14th hole, where he came up with an 8. After topping his drive, Louie said: "Ah, then began to beat mah ball to death with mah niblick."

The Arlmont Country Club will celebrate the opening of its remodeled and enlarged clubhouse one week from today, July 3. Plans call for a round of golf in the afternoon, after which there will be a dinner and a dance, followed by a Fourth of July bonfire.

Farrell Declines to Pick Open Winner

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion

WHO will win the great American links lottery?

To those of us who are about to thrust ourselves to-morrow into the three-day national open championship at the Winged Foot Golf Links, Mamaroneck, N. Y., it is a question unanswerable. A simple way to solve so profound a problem is to pick a name out of a hat.

If it were possible to peer into the future of next Saturday evening and foresee the result of the tormenting scramble, much anxiety would be saved.

I have no particular favorite, or perhaps I should have said choice. There are some of the boys who I would like to come through only because they have never succeeded in doing so. I know how it feels to try and try again, and then succeed unexpectedly. And, if I'm not to win it again (I'm pretty sure that I am not), I would like to see Leo Diegel, or Joe Turnesa, or Hobby Cruickshank, or MacDonald Smith, or some others who have known only disappointment year after year, grab the big prize. Each of these players I have mentioned are fully equipped to be champion.

THE fact that they have never won either a British or an American open championship proves how uncertain golf is and how hard it is to hit the bull-eye where there are so many aiming at the target.

I could name 30 golfers who are primed for the coming drama that possess all the requisites of a leader. I wouldn't be the least surprised if any one of them came through. So you can readily realize how futile it is to attempt to pick the winner.

There's Walter Hagen. Fresh from his remarkable victory in the British open, you would say that "The Haig" stood a fine chance to place himself the biggest piece of cake. And he does. Walter is one of the favorites, as he is in any event he enters. And yet it is 11 years since "The Haig" last won an American open championship. Since then, he has taken five American professional titles, four British open crowns, and any number of lesser honors.

THERE'S Bobby Jones. Needless to say there are many, many thousands who expect the Georgian to win. Perhaps he will. Winged Foot has great length and Bobby likes a course where the demand is for long second shots.

Jones has had a remarkable record in the American championship. For seven years he has been close to the top, if not on the peak. He was on the heels of Sarazen at Skokie. He won at Inwood. He was second to Cyril Walker at Oakland Hills. He tied with McLean at Worcester. He won at Scioto. He was sixth or seventh at Oakmont and he tied with me at Olympia Fields. Jones is a good bet any time.

There's Leo Diegel. The "Flying Dutchman is well on his game. You need only refer to his recent exploits abroad to know how keen he is. This may be "Diego" year. He has been flirting with the title a good while now. He has won the Canadian Open three times, and he is the present professional champion. He's another of the hot favorites. There are several others whose chances are very strong but these named seem most prominent at this writing.

GIRL, 9, WINS BLUE RIBBON

More than 500 persons comprised the gallery at the annual horse show of the Swampscott Riding Club at Deer Island, yesterday, and many of the younger riders of the North Shore were in the competition.

A little nine-year-old miss, Margaret Brush, on Buddy, won first honors in the all-around class for boys and girls under 12, with Anne Blood, on Pollyanna, second. The latter was a winner in four classes, however.

The show was featured by exhibitions riding by Crazy Bull, from the Crew Creek reservation, South Dakota. The Indian boy who is a student at Mt. Hermon preparatory school, is the guest of friends in Swampscott. He was attired in the full regalia of his tribe.

TENNIS UPSETS AT LONGWOOD

Seeded players in the boys' tennis singles championship had their troubles in the first days play at the Longwood Cricket Club.

In a first-round match David W. Shean, Arlington high, outwitted and outvolleyed Oscar W. Zarrell, who had been seeded third.

Richard Riley, seeded first, dropped seven games before defeating G. Eydenburg, 6-3, 6-2. It was a close match with the fine court work of Riley outstanding. Sumner Rodman, Latin school, seeded second, displayed a smooth attack to win two matches, first vanquishing the hard-hitting J. F. Donovan, 6-0, 6-3, and fighting an uphill battle to block the at tempts of Charles Houghton.

After Houghton had won the second set at 6--2 to even the match, the sturdy Latin lessee ran through the opening two games of the deciding set, but rallied and made the third round.

Basil Ridgeway, seeded fourth, was beaten in the second round by Walter Ingalls, 7--5, 8--6.

Hub Sending 15 to Y. M. C. A. Meet

Following trials at Huntington Field, Brookline, a track team of 15 athletes was selected to represent the Boston Y. M. C. A. in the national "Y" championships at Brooklyn, N. Y., Saturday.

The men chosen include two National Junior A. A. U. champions, Capt. Alex Reidell and Meyer Yavner. Reidell will compete in the 120 and 220-yard hurdles, the shot-put and the relay; Yavner in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and broad jump.

Virginia Wilson on Victory Trail

Buffalo, N. Y., June 26—Virginia Wilson, Chicago, maintained the brilliant pace set in capturing medalist honors at the ninth annual country clubs invitation golf tournament by scoring a three and two victory over Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit.

Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, defeated Helen Payson of Portland, Me., in an extra hole match. Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., also went to the 19th before she could subdue Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit.

Cards Win at Goshen

Mike Brady Goes Around Title Course in 68

Mamaroneck, N. Y., June 26—The best practice round on the Winged Foot course thus far was contributed by a great golfer who will use his flexible wrists for hand-shaking instead of making golf shots. Mike Brady, veteran pro at Winged Foot, who by irony of fate failed to qualify for play in the championship and will confine his activities to be a genial host when the firing begins, played the course in 68 strokes. He was followed closely by Neal McIntyre, pro from Indianapolis who had a 69.

2 SWIM TITLES AT STAKE

Two New England championship events, the 220-yard backstroke for women and the men's 300-yard medley, will hold the spotlight in the second swimming meet of the Boston Swimming Association, which will be held at the Natatorium Pool, Revere, on Saturday night.

Besides these races there will be 100 meters free-style scratch, 220 yards breaststroke, scratch and a 220-yard free-style handicap for women. In the men's events there will be a 100-meters free-style handicap, and several events closed to members of the Boston Club.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Golf's Greatest Teacher.

Beginners need the following clubs: Putter, spoon, midiron, mashie, mashie-niblick, niblick and putter. The first essential is not the grip, as is usually maintained, but a correct position at the ball—the right stance. There are three stance positions square, open, closed. The right one to start with is the square stance. In this you place your feet even with each other so that each toe rests on a line running parallel with an imaginary direction line toward the hole ahead. With the feet so placed, have the ball at a point off the left heel or a bit more forward off the left instep. Be sure you have it this far forward, and not back toward a point midway with once body. Stand equally on your feet and have your weight solidly on your heels—never out toward your toes.

A movement has been launched, to have American judges wear wigs in the English manner.

On the other hand, many American judges do not need to wear wigs in order to appear ridiculous.

BLACKBERRIES?

New Jersey officials have announced that ladies on public beaches will not be permitted to wear backless bathing suits.

Which is further evidence that there is no such thing as popular government.

Or, as the Rev. Mr. Wiley says—

SPECULATION PREFERRED TO INVESTMENT

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Buyers still prefer speculation to investment. The fact is lent emphasis by the activity of the speculative issues in the bond division of the New York Stock Exchange. "The prospects for a rise" appeal to most buyers more than dividend assurance. The trend too and speculation stuff of general type are and has shown no signs of abating as yet. The higher volume of trading in stocks has not been the result of a change in sentiment, but rather of a change in the buying power of certain traders.

Amid the wide-spread condemnation of the Federal Reserve Board, do not ignore the fact that its policies are not everywhere condemned. The business leaders of the country are in control thus exercised through the medium of direct pressure, the system has established now and then, which shows that diversion of Federal Reserve credit into speculative channels may be curbed without serious injury to agriculture and business.

A news item within the week stated: "What becomes of the 367,000,000 pairs of shoes produced in the United States in one year has been figured out by statisticians for the Department of Commerce, who have discovered that the average American woman wears out three pairs while a man is getting along with two. The report just completed shows American women are buying 124,000,000 pairs of shoes a year, the men 93,000,000 pairs, girls are getting 74,000,000 pairs, boys 26,291,000, and the babies 24,222,000 pairs of shoes. The rest are exported."

* * *

Unfortunately for the accuracy of the news given, all the shoes worn in the United States are not made here. The rates of duty levied on the free list by the tariff framers of a few years ago upset the equity of valuations in favorable colonies, and opened this important New England industry to the inroads of foreign manufacturers.

* * *

The figures for March, the last reported month, offer illuminating data. In that month alone we imported 860,495 pairs of all leather shoes, 112,026 pairs of slippers and 340,807 pairs of rubber footwear.

Several weeks ago we published the announcement that Maine had achieved the distinction of being the second State in the Union and the first in New England to be pronounced entirely free of cattle tuberculosis. At Springfield, within the week, Dr. E. A. Wight, chief of the tuberculosis eradication activities of the United States Department of Agriculture, congratulated Maine on being the second State in the United States and the first in New England to achieve the status of being, in all counties modified accredited area with 100 per cent of cattle under supervision, Vermont more than 95 per cent, Connecticut nearly 17 per cent, Massachusetts almost 81 per cent and Rhode Island more than 20 per cent.

* * *

The part of the picture not emphasized by the dairy leaders is the tremendous decrease in the number of milch cows. A good milch cow some 20 years ago could be bought for around $40, but such a cow easily brings $100. The trend in horseflesh is reversed. The horse that once brought $100 20 years ago today can be bought for $50, at least around what they call the "North Country."

CONVERTIBLES AGAIN LEAD BOND MART

New York, June 26 (AP)—Enormous transactions in three sharply rising convertibles completely dominated the early trading in today's bond market, accounting for an unusually large proportion of the total sales volume.

International Telephone convertible 4½s increased 141 for a new high on an overnight gain of more than 2 points. American Telephone 4½s, following the rise of 3 points an hour, par value, soared more than 2 points, while Atchison 4½s made a new 1929 peak above 124.

Other share privilege rails showed less spectacular volumes, but were strong. New Haven 6s, the issue, moved up to 128, a peak, and Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants, climbed fractionally. Missouri Pacific 5½s held close to Tuesday's final price.

Interest in the remainder of the list was at a minimum and prices eased off slightly under the dark inquiry of a market that finds railroads bonds legal for savings banks in the State selling around a 5 per cent basis, the highest return in years.

Some of the broadest changes were recorded in Light & Power, Tobacco 6s, off more than 2, National Radiator 6½s, down to the low of 48, and Wabash 4½s, nearly a point lower.

Foreign sugars improved somewhat. Cuban Dominican 7½s and East Cuba 7½s rising from ½ to 1 point.

Western Union 4½s shared the strength of the communication issues, both bonds and stocks, by advancing more than a point. Utility and industrial mortgages were generally dull in common with foreign and United States government securities.

OPTIMISM HIGH ON JULY MARKET

In the current issue of Barron's financial Weekly, the Trader says that "the action of the stock market for weeks, and especially through what was thought would be the period of greatest money strain, demonstrates the artificiality of credit control.

Optimism in banking circles is now running high, because of a favorable business outlook, reasonable money rates, and an oversold market; and it now looks as though July might well witness another release of pent-up speculative energy. Favorable earnings statements will stimulate enthusiasm. Business and profits trends should be the dominant influence in the third quarter."

In the renewal of speculative activity, "the thing to guard against is excessive enthusiasm generated by mere tape activity and the hasty assumption of a position in issues which, though they have enjoyed long-sustained popularity, may actually have lost their vogue in Wall Street."

With reference to specific groups, the Barron's stock market expert says that "toward rails, equipments, food stocks, especially baking companies, and chemicals, sound speculative opinion is pretty uniformly favorable. Baking companies selling their products at prices which are for the most part fixed stand to benefit greatly by cheap flour and sugar and cheaper lard."

Stock Offerings to Finance Apartments

Financing of co-operative apartments and other building enterprises through a preferred stock issue rather than through mortgage or mortgage bond issue was forecast by Pres. Sutton of Shepard Hagden & Lynch, Inc., of New York, addressing the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Shell Union Oil's Vote Coming July 8

Special meeting of Shell Union Oil Corp. stockholders will be held July 8 to vote on an increase in authorized stock by creation of $40,000,000 5½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred of $100 par. Public offering has already been made.

UTILITIES IN LEADERSHIP ON CURB

New York, June 26 (AP)—Public utilities resumed leadership of today's quiet session on the Curb Market, with Electric Bond & Share and United Gas Improvement issues boosted again into new high ground. The market held fairly steady all day, with some selling encountered in the afternoon Gains for the most part were small, and the volume of trading light.

Increased railroad earnings and continued high steel production were hailed by traders as indicating industry was being maintained at nearly record levels. Corporation earnings were favorable.

The advance in United Gas Improvement old stock to above 229 for a gain of more than 6 points reflected strength of Public Service of New Jersey Corporation stock, of which U. G. I. holds a large block. The new stock got above 47.

Electric Bond & Share erased 115 for a gain of 5 points and American Light & Traction shot up 9 to 279. Electric Bond & Share also advanced 2. Long Island Lighting shot up to a new high on announcement of increased earnings.

Aircraft stocks were strong on persistent rumors of a merger of Curtiss and Wright aeronautical interests. Keystone and Niles Bement Pond were the leaders, the latter converting an early 2¾-point loss into a gain of more than a point.

Libbey Owens Sheet Glass sold off on profit-taking after yesterday's sharp advance on announcement of increased dividends and four for one stock split up.

Oils were strong in face of a further gain in weekly petroleum output. Standard Oil of Ohio which usually has a thin market, rose 2½, and Gulf and Humble were strong. Condex topped more than 3 points under profit-taking in the early morning, but bounded upward later.

Draper Corporation moved up 6 points to a new high at 78. This Massachusetts company, which manufactures looms reports earnings are recovering after a slump last year. Deere & Company rose more than 8.

$500,000 Interest on Bonds Defaulted

New York, June 26—Key System Transit Co. will default $500,000 interest due July 1 on its first mortgage bonds, general refunding mortgage bonds and notes of Key System Securities Co., according to Pres. A. J. Lundberg.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Health Hint

THE modern mother should not shun the duty of nursing. Mother's milk cannot be duplicated. It is by far the best food for the baby. Such breast-fed babies are far stronger and healthier than bottle-fed ones. Then there is the difficulty of picking a suitable bottle food for them.

DO YOU HIDE AFFECTION? -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Sally May Lose Him, Warns Expert in Love Problems

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

"SALLY" is devoted to a young man, but she would not let him know of her affection, not even when he asked her to "go steady" with him. Now she wonders whether it is too late to win his love.

Emotion is a very undependable guide in love and court-ship because emotions are often conflicting and pull in contrary directions. Sally has been confused by conflicting emotions of affection and pride—possibly false pride. What she needed was to call in her good judgment and common sense and confer with her emotions and guide them. With heart and head working together there is no reason why Sally should not achieve success in romance as in every other phase of happy, normal living.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes Sally:

"About two years ago I started going out with a fellow that I cared for, but I never showed that I cared. After going with me a fellow for several months he asked me to go steady, but I put him off, telling him I would let him know on my birthday, which was a couple of months away.

"Meanwhile, I started going out with others and gave very little attention to Robert, as I shall call him.

"Well, he stopped calling me up and no longer took me out. He and I saw a great deal of each other at my girl friend's home, but had nothing to say.

"Months passed and I became ill and was in a hospital for Christ-mas, but letting no one know. Finally, who should surprise me with a visit but Robert? We did not have much to say to each other, as another of my boy friends was there. Now the problem is, I love this boy and want to know how I can win his love. My parents like him and he could never do me else. I guess he 'is' crazy.

"I realize what a fool I have been, but I promise it won't be.

"ANXIOUS SALLY

"P. S.—I am 15 years of age. Please don't tell me that I am too young."

Let me hasten to assure you, Sally, dear, that you are not too young for friendship and affection, possible and for serious love, although you may not look at things a bit differently than you now do at 18. However, time will test the attraction between you and Robert and prove whether it is pure gold or just a bit of spring tone paste that will wash off in the coming of midsummer.

Nor is it too late to begin to treat his friendly affection for you with considerate kindness and wisdom. I am glad he cares.

What you should avoid, you note even but of natural human feeling, friendly affections, you may feel for a friend just because he happens to be a young man and may happen to be a girl. Men are human and long for a little wholesome response to the attention and attentions they offer. By this statement I do not mean to advocate necking or premature gushing sentiment. But on the other hand, Sally, it is not necessary to be cold to the point of rudeness in order to avoid the appearance of running after a young man.

I suggest that from now on you adopt an attitude of friendly affection toward your friend. It may be the affection between you will never progress further than friendly and sisterly love.

You can easily adopt and follow a middle course between your own common sense, midway between gushing flattery and over-reserve on the one hand and indifference on the other. Why do you not treat him with the same frank friendliness you would if you would welcome from a comrade?

While it is not wise to go about "sexualize" with any young man until you become engaged to him still you would naturally encourage and show the great interest you have in the friend you like best. This wholesome response on your part will help the friendship grow, just as sunlight stimulates flowers.

SPECIAL FOOD FOR YOUNG

By Louis E. Bisch, M. D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

DURING adolescence girls often crave certain kinds of foods such as highly flavored foods and sweets. Such vagaries of appetite should be controlled.

Care should also be exercised in selecting meats for young people, of which there are not specially difficult to digest, avoiding fried foods, pork, and made over dishes.

It is always wise to encourage the drinking of milk, especially when a craving for tea or coffee is manifest. The caffein in coffee and the theo in tea are alkaloids which the growing boy and girl can well do without.

Cereal coffees and those in which the caffein has been removed are suitable substitutes and often a child can be made to like cocoa.

Where there is much difficulty many children eat cereals for breakfast. When this is the case the addition of dates or some stewed fruit may make the dish more attractive.

For girls who seem to have a anaemic appetite a breakfast dish consisting of toast made from whole wheat or graham bread, and served with hot milk or cream, may serve as a pleasing substitute for cereal.

Our young folks usually like fruit and they should be given good supply of this as fruit helps to build the body and is an excellent digestive regulator.

Children, also, often do not like salads. It makes a great deal of difference however if these salads are daintily prepared and consist of crisp, fresh or cooked vegetables to which fresh fruit or eggs should be added, which should not be served with too rich or too highly-seasoned a dressing.

Both breads of all kinds should be used but sparingly. In any case, the best bread for adolescents is that which contains plenty of ruin and comparatively little soft cereal.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer your questions on matters of etiquette. Write to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have a problem, and perhaps you can help me with it. But it may be out of your line.

You usually hear faultfinding about men for not being as generous to their wives after marriage as they are in their courting days. Me wife always had a sweet tooth and I sometimes would bring her candy. So on one occasion I brought her candy, the best kind I could get, and far more costly than that I used to give her years ago, when were "courting." We began nibbling at the candy, edged on a chair a little closer to here, hoping to get her appreciation of me thoughtful. She dissed a long face and with some suspicion in her eye said, "What is wrong with you now?" They closed the incident. What would you advise or suggest in a case of this kind?

JIM.

I M tom between being cross at your wife for not appreciating your kind thought and your wish to please her, and wondering if you had perhaps been a little thoughtful for so long that she naturally did have a bit of suspicion at this sudden attention. No third person could pass judgment on this, for no third person would be familiar with the state of the affairs between. What I advise is persistent attention, with candy ready for the craving sweet tooth.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

When one intends to spend the evening dancing in the grill room of the hotel, how would he the proper food to order?

SUE.

I HAVE prepared for this answer just the pamphlet that I should love to have the opportunity of sending you. It is called "After-Theater Eats," and I have listed everything in it that I would think of, from the simplest of orders to the most sophisticated of foods "unfit for the stomach." Would you be willing to send me an addressed envelope and let me send this pamphlet to you?

FASHIONS

BY SPECIAL PERMISSION OF GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

FEMININITY IN THE STYLES

SPONSORED by all the important designers in Paris at the Spring openings, femininity is further endorsed by the mid-season collections. The youthful note in feminine garb is strongly stressed and the two outfits pictured here are charming examples of the mode.

The linen jacket costume on the left is in yellow, the frock of plain color, trimmed with the printed material. The jacket is also yellow, printed in a leaf design in yellows, oranges, browns and reds. The hat and parasol are of the plain yellow linen, which material also forms the collar and cuffs of the jacket.

The bolero frock on the right is simply adorable in its youthful simplicity. The high waistline is featured in the dress, which is of white linen and the bolero of the same material is embroidered in gaily colored wool flowers. A simple belt with novel clasp is worn with the dress. The hat is of natural baku with a pleated back, and a novel touch is given to the shirt by the single inverted pleat in the front.

Tussor, wool crepe and tweeds are also used in developing Summer frocks for previews, and for the spectators whose desire is a keen interest in the sports, without the actual participation. Hence the new spectator frocks patterned on the sport togs.

All the colors of the rainbow mingle to make the smart necklace for street wear. Multi-colored semi-precious stones, such as jade lapis lazuli, onyx and coral are all used in one necklace, a large pierce forming the pendant drop. Earrings can be had to match, and are worn of necessity with a hat of simple and plain design.

GIRLS' SPORTS TYPE

Note the scarf and bows treatment on model. Linen goes with extremely long lines, and flattering box-plaits across front of skirt. The back is also plaited. The waist is caught in with belt shoulder, and slips through a bound opening at left side of waist line. The V-neckline is collarless in accordance with the latest mode. Bias facing is placed at left hip, carries out otherwise the designer had in mind when she created this charming dress to make the figure appear more slender.

Printed crash silk was chosen for the original model. It is a flattering cool fabric, just like for summer wear for town or resort. The contrast is of plain rajah in lighter tone of same hue.

Style No. 8098 comes in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In 18 year size, 3¼ yards of 40-inch material with 5 yard of 35-inch contrast is sufficient.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (wrapper preferred). Enclose 15 cents additional, if you wish a copy of our latest book of Fifth Avenue Fashions. All our styles are created in Paris or New York. Every pattern contains full directions. No experience necessary. Very easy to use and guaranteed to fit perfectly.

HUSBAND IS STUBBORN

By LUCY LOWELL

IT is a self-evident truth that two objects cannot occupy the same space at the same time. If, therefore, you wish to prevent some one placing an objectionable thing in a given space, you have but to put something which pleases you there first.

I know a young wife who has spent much thought and unlimited tact upon the task of preventing her husband from installing a great, ugly old desk in a corner of one of her pretty rooms. There is no reason for the desk being in their home at all; it long ago passed its usefulness, it is ramshackle and ponderous and completely out of keeping with the beautiful things she has gathered about them.

But some curious stubbornness in the husband causes him to hang to the desk, and every so often he considers some bit of space for the purpose of dragging in the desk and setting it up.

The wife does not waste words. When she sees what her husband is about she promptly shifts furniture and either suddenly will find with a graceful table, an inviting chair and lamp or perhaps a couch urged to add to the symmetry of the room.

Thoughts are the objects of the mental realm and quite as the wife manipulates chairs and tables if possible so to use thoughts of good will that there will be no place for malice, fear, hatred—all the ugliness in our consciousness.

If the mind is filled with love how can hatred set up occupancy in it. If truth is firmly installed what room is there for falsehood? If harmony fills the thought how can disorder come in?

Only be sure that you fill your mind with good will before evil has a chance to gain a resting place. It is easier to keep a room clean than to move it once it is established.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

STRONG DEFENSIVE PLAYING

Auction Bidding: South bids one Diamond; West, two Clubs; North passes. North's hand is too weak to warrant a betterment take-out. East, two Spades. South passes. Although he holds rebid strength, six probable tricks, sufficient to warrant a bid of two Diamonds, it is not sufficient to justify a bid of three without hearing from partner. West and South also pass.

The Play: South leads the King of Diamonds upon which Declarer false-cards the 3 to induce a shift of suits. But South follows with the Ace, and Declarer, to continue his attempt at deception, plays the 10, retaining the 5. South has noted the absence of the 3 of Diamonds on Tricks 1 and 2 and suspects that Declarer is false-carding. If Declarer holds the 3, South realizes that he can probably win game by continuing the Diamond suit. Declarer must either allow the third round to make, or ruff in Dummy in which case South's King of trumps cannot be captured by finessing.

Declarer accepts the force and immediately establishes a Club to provide for the discard of the Heart Jack while Dummy has the Ace of Spades for re-entry. The advantageous Ace of Clubs, the King of trumps, which subsequently makes, and the two Diamond tricks save game.

We Whitehead will answer questions concerning auction bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

MAKE HOME ENTICING

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A NOTED professor lately wrote a long and much worried treatise on the pleasure seeking of older children during vacation time. Briefly, he said that it centered for the most part around attending questionable motion pictures and pool rooms. And his solution of the problem was to have NO vacation! School should keep on session the year round, he advocated, in order to save the youth of the land from pleasures which led to delinquency.

Ambitious as it may seem, I must differ with this learned man, in that I feel that the normal, healthy youngsters of today have many interests aside from the ones he stressed. Also, it seems, that after months of routine, mental work and application the young, growing people NEED vacations, and that it is the responsibility not so much of the school, but of the home and parents to see that children learn to use their vacation wisely, not on the streets, but in the home.

A mother, with reasonable investigation as to the title, the pictorial advertising and synopses of coming motion pictures can pretty well gauge whether it is a story which should be seen by her youngsters. If it is not, there are hundreds of other theaters showing less sophisticated films which may serve as a legitimate amusement for at least one night a week. The biggest objection I see to attending pictures is the fact that growing children need air and sunshine and vigorous exercise rather than two or three hours cooped up with other human beings. But children, young and old, love pictures.

Why not bring them into the home with one of the small motion picture cameras now available? Hikes made with the idea of obtaining beautiful panoramas, or a picture of the school class on the lawn or baby sister playing in the sandpile, or mother and father under the rose arbor, are certainly good fun to take, and fun to show for many evenings to groups of young friends.

And pool rooms? Extremely objectionable, I'd say, not referring to the game, but to the older and often questionable associates. Why not scrimp a bit on gasoline and buy a billiard table for the house. Just let Mother make one good "bank shot" and she will stop raising against the game.

Why not have the rug up in the living room for the summer and keep open house for dancing?

It is my firm belief that the young folk will stay at home WHEN they can find as much pleasure there as they find on the street or around the corner.

PUT UP STRAWBERRIES

IT'S easy during this summer joyment of the strawberry to forget the long cold winter when you'd give a world of you to have the unequaled strawberry flavor in shining glass containers for your pantry shelves.

Here's the how of canned strawberries.

Use only fresh ripe, firm and sound berries. Wash and stem. Add 1 c of sugar and 2 cups of water to each quart of berries. Cook slowly to the boiling point. Then rapidly for 15 minutes in an acid-proof kettle. (Enamelware without cracks.) Allow the berries to cool and stand several hours or over night in the covered kettle. Pack the cold berries in hot jars. Put the rubbers and caps of the jars in position, but not tight. Sterilize 8 minutes in water bath. Remove jars. Tighten covers. Let the jars cool, test seals and tell every day for a week, and the berries will not rise to the top of the syrup. Wrap the jars with paper to prevent bleaching and store.

Speaking of jars reminds me that our favorite canning seal jars come in new shapes and sizes for home canning. I'll be glad to tell you more about them and where to get them if you'll drop me a line.

Strawberry preserve can be made by two methods

STRAWBERRY PRESERVE No. 1

Select [illegible]
Prepare and measure sugar in proportion [illegible]
1 lb of berries [illegible]
¾ cup sugar. Let [illegible]
Place over [illegible]
gradually for 15 minutes, or until the fruit is clear. Pack immediately in jelly glasses or jars.

STRAWBERRY PRESERVE No. 2

Pick over, wash and stem 3 qts. of fine, firm strawberries. Then weigh out 2 lbs of them. Boil 5 c of sugar with 2 c. of water or two cups of juice to a thick syrup. Skim. Add the berries. Cover and bring slowly to a boil. Remove the cover and let boil rapidly for 15 minutes. Then cover and let stand until cold. Remove the cover and let stand over night. Then pour in sterilized jelly glasses and cover with parafine. For the berry juice crush, heat and strain the imperfect berries.

I gave you the recipe for Strawberry and Rhubarb Jam the other day, so here's one for

PINEAPPLE AND STRAWBERRY JAM

Run pared and cored pineapple through a food chopper. Take equal parts of strawberries and pineapple. To every 3 c of fruit add 4 c of sugar. Let stand several hours. Put in preserving kettle. Cook gently until clear and thick. Put into jelly glasses. Cover and set away in a cool dry place.

SUNSHINE STRAWBERRIES

Use equal weights of sugar and strawberries. Put the strawberries in the preserving kettle in layers, sprinkling sugar over each layer about 2 inches deep. Place on fire and heat slowly to the boiling point. Skim carefully. Boil rapidly for 10 minutes. Pour into dishes and place in a pie apple layer. Cover them with a glass dish or a plain window glass. Let stand in the sunshine for 8 or 12 hours. Then pour into jars or tumblers.

Going back to the subject of preserved strawberries I am also reminded of two other recipes used with great success by friends of mine. The first recommends weighing the washed drained and hulled berries and filling the glass jars with them. Next a syrup is made by boiling three-quarters of the weight of the berries in sugar with water, allowing one cup of water to each pound of sugar.

Cook this syrup 15 minutes and add the berries and boil for one minute. The syrup overflows the jars. Let stand 15 minutes when the cap will have shrunk and more fruit must be added to fill the jars. Screw on the covers and put on a rack in a kettle of cold water. Heat the water to the boiling point and keep just below the boiling point one hour.

The other method recommends putting the berries over night in a preserving kettle with an equal amount of sugar. Bring to a boil and boil until the fruit juice will jell when a teaspoon is cooled on a saucer. Fill your preserving jars immediately and seal. With any of these methods I know you will have success.

Remember if I can help you with any of your other canning problems, won't you let me hear from you?

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

A SIX-DAY STORY

How Love Saved Woman From Clutches of Crooks

CHAPTER 3

A KNOCK on the door interrupted the conference between the two Daltons and Dench came in.

Grant gave him a friendly smile. "Sit down," he said pointing to the chair opposite. "Have a drink." When Dench refused he offered his cigar case. "You'll take a cigar any way," he said hospitably.

"Of course, nothing," replied Dench calmly.

"That's what I'm here for," Dench answered.

"All right," said Dalton quietly. "I reckon we can fix it up, but first I'd like to hear where you stand. How much do you know?"

Dench eyed him calmly. "I know you're not here for your health, and I don't swallow that yarn about your being any kin to the late Barton Nesbit. But since Nesbit left a pile to his widow, I take it you're reckoning to get your fingers on all you can before the bubble bursts and you have to skin out."

Grant nodded. "That's about the size of it," he said.

"How do you suppose you'll do it?" asked Dench. "The money's all in trust."

"You've sure got your wits with you," said Grant approvingly. "That's the snag, and the way we'd fixed it was for her to marry Philip here, but that fellow Barlard upset the plan."

Dench looked from one to the other. "Who's this Ballard?" he demanded.

"His mother owned this place," Grant explained. "Lives up on the Moor. He and Mrs. Nesbit met yesterday and fell for one another."

"Quick work," said Dench with a cynical grin. He knew now why Ballard was remembered him as the man who had been with Joyce in the fog on the previous afternoon.

Grant answered. "Because she ain't even her first husband is dead. He was in that Rogue River smash up. I guess you remember it."

"I remember it all right," said Dench. "But see here," he added, "if she don't marry Ballard, she can't marry Philip either."

"That's a fact," allowed Grant, "but it ain't certain Charlie is alive. My notion is to keep Ballard off her by making him think she ain't a widow."

Dench's eyes widened slightly. "You're some little schemer, Hawk Halstead. But I fancy you've bitten off more than you can chew. You've got to remember this is not Gold Cove."

"The girl was like putty in my hands," said Dalton, "till this Ballard came along. Got him out of the picture, and she's my meat again. It's the biggest coup I ever tried for, and if those fellows don't won't be any need for me to work again so long as I live."

"Oh, Philip either," said Dench with a slight sneer. "But where do I come in?"

"You'll get your whack," said Grant. "You'll share if you throw in with us."

"What's the size of the pot?" asked Dench shrewdly.

"Half a million dollars, a hundred thousand English pounds." Grant's pale eyes gleamed as he mouthed these figures. "Are you on, Dench? We ain't going to hurt you either. You'll be married good and proper to Philip here."

Dench spoke again. "What do you want me to do?"

"First thing is to tell Mrs. Nesbit we ain't leaving in the morning like we thought," said Grant. "Then Joyce told him how Dench had saved her from Willard. Jeff Ellis, a butterfly in a wash gown, appeared.

After Joyce had left, Jeff suddenly remembered the escaped convict and the possible chance of her meeting them. He rushed to his little car and speeded toward the Sanderson mansion. There he learned that Joyce had left a quarter of an hour before alone.

He hurried after her hoping to overtake her. As he climbed Sleepy Tor he saw a man leaning against the bank. He got out and walked over. At the first question this other's fist shot out and soon the two men were rolling on the ground, locked in a desperate battle. There came a screech of brakes and a shout: "There they are. Hands up, you fools!"

It was then that Jeff discovered he'd been in a bottle royal with an escaped convict, Willard himself and his captors released him asking anxiously if he'd seen the second prisoner.

"One's enough for me, thank you," said Jeff drily. They informed him that Mrs. Nesbit had telephoned the whereabouts of Willard and that was how they happened to find him.

Joyce's eyes lit with pleasure when he appeared. He was dazzled by her beauty in the evening dress. "Oh, Jeff," she began, holding out her hands and then she saw his muddy state and his bruised cheeks. "What's happened?"

Jeff's laugh reassured her. "There isn't a thing the matter with me that a clothes brush won't remedy," he assured her. "I come to see if you were all right. I'm afraid you had an awful fright."

"What else could I mean?"

"But what do you know about it?" she countered.

"I followed you. I remembered those convicts and got out my little car and hurried after you to Taviton."

"That was splendid of you," said Joyce. "Let's go in my sitting room I want to talk to you."

When the door was closed she startled Jeff by saying: "I got Dench in the house as my butler," she said enjoying his amazement and yet a little frightened. "You remember the convict who smiled at me yesterday—he used to be my husband's partner in the States, right up to the time of the accident."

"You mean he knows the truth about your husband?"

"If anyone knows he does. He thinks it is certain that poor Charlie was killed, but cannot be quite sure. He is going to find out for me."

Jeff looked very serious. "You are taking a fearful risk, Joyce. The penalties for aiding an escaped convict are very severe, and there is every chance of Dench being identified, and suppose the Daltons find out?"

"Please bring Mr. Ballard home immediately," she ordered. The new butler vanished to reappear almost immediately with the required visitor.

It was evident that Jeff wanted to be alone with him and Joyce took occasion to slip out of the room. Dench filled Jeff's glass. After he had finished it he faced the butler:

"How did you dare to steer a woman into a fix like this?" he demanded. "Don't you realize the terrible trouble she will be in if this gets out?"

"A desperate man will take any chance that offers," he answered calmly.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joyce Nesbit, an attractive young widow, loses her way in the fog and stops to ask directions at a small cottage on the moor near Dartmoor prison. She meets the owner, Jeff Ballard, an American, who has come back to settle his mother's estate. He is disgusted and voices his intention of going West again. Joyce is struck with his manliness and friendliness. She reveals to him that she is the one who has bought Deeping Royal, his old home, and that she is alone in the world except for two distant relatives by marriage, Grant and Philip Dalton, father and son. They are taking care of her fortune. She takes Jeff to the old home and he sizes up the men as crooks. Joyce orders them to get out. Jeff tells her if she were poor he would marry her; she persuades him to become engaged to her as a means of protection. They see a file of convicts passing and Joyce recognizes one of them as a man named Dench. She goes alone to ride. On the way back one of two escaped convicts holds up the car.

She is rescued from him by another escaped convict who proves to be Dench, once her dead husband's valet. To help him she passes him off as a butler who has failed to appear. The Daltons recognise him, but he amazes them by recognizing them, too, as crooks, and threatens to send them to jail if they give him away. They are after Joyce's money and take him into partnership, the elder Dalton telling his son that if Dench gets troublesome there's one sure way to stop him.

"You knocked the other blackguard out when he attacked Mrs. Nesbit—that is the States, right up to the time of the accident."

"You mean he knows the truth about your husband?"

"If anyone knows he does. He thinks it is certain that poor Charlie was killed, but cannot be quite sure. He is going to find out for me."

Jeff looked very serious. "You are taking a fearful risk, Joyce. The penalties for aiding an escaped convict are very severe, and there is every chance of Dench being identified, and suppose the Daltons find out?"

"They've found out," she answered calmly.

"This is terrible," said Jeff, "he's bound to be caught."

After Joyce had left, Jeff suddenly remembered the escaped convicts and the possible chance of her meeting them. He rushed to his little car and speeded toward the Sanderson mansion. There he learned that Joyce had left a quarter of an hour before alone.

He hurried after her hoping to overtake her. As he climbed Sleepy Tor he saw a man leaning against the bank. He got out and walked over. At the first question this other's fist shot out and soon the two men were rolling on the ground, locked in a desperate battle. There came a screech of brakes and a shout: "There they are. Hands up, you fools!"

It was then that Jeff discovered he'd been in a bottle royal with an escaped convict, Willard himself and his captors released him asking anxiously if he'd seen the second prisoner.

"One's enough for me, thank you," said Jeff drily. They informed him that Mrs. Nesbit had telephoned the whereabouts of Willard and that was how they happened to find him.

As the warders bundled Willard away he turned his car toward Deeping Royal.

Joyce's eyes lit with pleasure when he appeared. He was dazzled by her beauty in the evening dress. "Oh, Jeff," she began, holding out her hands and then she saw his muddy state and his bruised cheeks. "What's happened?"

Jeff's laugh reassured her. "There isn't a thing the matter with me that a clothes brush won't remedy," he assured her. "I come to see if you were all right. I'm afraid you had an awful fright."

"What else could I mean?"

"But what do you know about it?" she countered.

"I followed you. I remembered those convicts and got out my little car and hurried after you to Taviton."

NEWS AND VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

FINE POINTS of MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

FOLLOWING our chat on foundation last Saturday, let us talk today on the other—and equally interesting — extreme of modern home construction: Shingles.

And while it may be thought a far cry from cellar to roof, I have chosen the topic, at the suggestion of the Boston Evening American Modern Homes Bureau, because it is really next to foundations in importance.

Betty Bonnell

Like its name-sake, employed to designate a certain type of "bob," the present-day shingle is a strictly modern development. Of course, the practice of covering a roof with wafer-like squares of wood dates back to the Ark—or before. However, the modern shingle is as little like that used by Noah for the cabin roof of his famous craft as a modern liner is like the Ark.

While wood is still used with excellent effect in making shingles it is selected with a definite knowledge as to what kind is best for the purpose and, usually, treated chemically to withstand the weather.

Creosote, forced into the wood under terrific pressure, is, generally, the chemical employed. When the architecture of the modern home demands a strictly natural effect, plain wood shingles are applied.

However, to the modern home builder looking for a suitable material for the shingling of his new domicile there is a fairly broad field to choose from—I only stress wood for the reason that it is the popular choice for modern residential purposes. Shingles may be had also in asphalt, tile, asbestos, slate and copper. All of these materials are standard and their virtues well established as far as beauty and durability are concerned.

Among the manufacturers of standard shingles whose products are considered dependable are the following concerns: Johns-Manville, The Ruberoid Company, Creo-Dipt, Flintkote Company, Cabot Stained Company, Samil Cabot and the Elbrida Company.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of the modern home will be sent to you if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Home Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

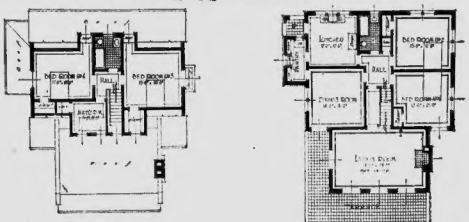
Spanish Semi-Bungalow, Cost $15,200

E. G. Morris & Son, Architects
NATIONAL MODERN HOMES BUREAU, Inc.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

Distinctive Home of Original Design.
By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

However, the architects have, by well-handled roof lines, provided a comfortable second floor for guests. Here are two good bedrooms and a bath, a maid's room is also provided.

This arrangement allows the second floor for the exclusive use of guests, if desired, while the family have their bedrooms on the first floor.

All of the convenience of bungalow housekeeping is here found, with the added feature of a second floor that provides fine accommodation for guests. As these rooms are not used continuously, their isolation from the family rooms is an advantage, it provides the desired privacy for both.

Or, the second floor could be given over to the children if one wished, for small children, the playthings and such that clutter up the house would here be out of the way, and the maid would be close at hand. Or, if the children are grown-ups, the privacy of these rooms from the main rooms of the first floor make them ideal for study retirement.

Throughout the house, all rooms are of good size and there is plenty of closet space.

The living room opens on a terrace on two sides and the dining room also connects with this terrace. The living room has a high curved ceiling, giving it unusual character.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. Refer to House A-80.

British Cabinet Gets King's Speech

London, June 26 (AP)—A cabinet council was held at No. 10 Downing st. today under the presidency of Premier MacDonald to discuss completion of the King's speech from the throne which will be read before Parliament on July 2.

The administration's attitude toward the naval strength problem, its proposals with regard to the means of seeking re-establishment of diplomatic relations with Russia, and its plan for attacking the unemployment situation are almost certain to hold prominent places in the speech.

MEDICAL

X-RAY
Examination, consultation and trial treatment absolutely free, to all who call before June 30th. The wonderful power of the X-ray and mercury quartz light treatment is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be, remember Dr. J. Walsh, M. D., will make good the above offer.

SKIN TROUBLE
Mr. John Rollins, 258 Saratoga St., E. Boston, Mass., says: "I had eczema so bad that I was compelled to quit work. The trouble started three years ago and kept growing worse despite the fact that they are accomplishing wonders in diseases of every description. No matter what your disease may be, remember Dr. J. Walsh, M. D., will make good the above offer. Mr. Rollins' case is one of many that Dr. Walsh treats me and much to my pleasure he succeeded in completely banishing it and as gratefull to Dr. Walsh as I am, there are others who are suffering from any trouble to Dr. Walsh's office and they can be assured of his honest treatment."

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Allen Should Fill Power Probe Board at Once

Governor Allen should proceed at once to appoint the three citizens who will complete the special unpaid commission created by the Legislature to investigate the activities of the Power Trust in Massachusetts.

Both branches of the Legislature have selected their representatives to sit upon this most important body. Frank W. Osborne of Lynn was the choice of the Senate, and the House named Thomas R. Bateman of Winchester, Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth and Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton.

Those four gentlemen are without authority of any kind to act until the Governor completes the commission by appointment of the three citizen members. This he should do immediately.

And it would be a graceful gesture and no less a move of wisdom if Governor Allen should appoint a woman to the commission. A woman's viewpoint is an invaluable asset to any body working in the public welfare, a fact recognized by President Hoover in his recent appointment of President Ada L. Comstock of Radcliffe as a member of the law enforcement commission.

Whatever his choice may be, Governor Allen may be depended upon, we feel, to select individuals whose capabilities are co-ordinate with the importance of the probe to be undertaken.

When the commission is completed it may well consider expenditure of a fair amount of the $20,000 at its disposal for employment of carefully selected counsel, preferably an attorney who is familiar with the problem of the public and the Power Trust.

The public wants all the facts in the Power Trust "grab" of lighting companies, newspapers and other powerful interests. The public wants as little delay as possible in the unearthing of those facts, in order that corrective legislation may be offered at the next session of the General Court.

The Starfish Girl

Interesting? Yes, but Not Useful

(Copyright, 1929)

MEET MISS GEORGIA GRAVES, STARFISH GIRL

At the Folies Bergere in Paris, where champagne is cheap and Americans are plentiful, this lady stirs the sluggish imagination of spectators, ever seeking "something new."

She gives an imitation of a starfish, at least that's what the program says, and you are bound to admit that she does well what she undertakes to do.

Why do we like such distortions of the human body? Why would the average million prefer this starfish dance to the most graceful dancing of the famous Taglioni? Why do we prefer the wheezing, grunting saxophone in its jazz dyspepsia to the music of Beethoven or the playing of Paganini?

The answer is, because we are savages.

Why does one savage lady put an enormous piece of bone in her lower lip, pushing it out six inches, or fasten in the lobe of her ear a heavy weight that drags it down to the shoulder?

Why do some savages pierce holes in their cheeks and insert in them heavy bristles from the wild boar?

Ten thousand would pay to see a lady turn three back somersaults, if that were possible, where a hundred wouldn't trouble to see Raphael's Sistine Madonna.

She is obliged to take civilization and human beings as she finds them. And if the reward for being a human starfish is greater than the reward for being a human mother, many will decide to be starfish—but not ALL, fortunately.

Times Change

If Mrs. Belmont Wrote Her Life

(Copyright, 1929)

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, decides to sell her marble palace at Newport. She lives now in a seventh century chateau in the South of France. The mere thought of Newport bores her.

If you want a marble palace, well furnished, you can get it from her for a few million dollars.

Mrs. Belmont, still young and charming, has seen interesting changes in New York social life. She remembers when she was putting the Vanderbilts into society, teaching her brother-in-law, Cornelius Vanderbilt, to have a footman "on the box" and a man with powdered hair, instead of a maid with a little white apron, to open the front door. She remembers when "real society" explained apologetically that it went to the Vanderbilt fancy dress ball, in the big, brown-stone house, "just out of curiosity."

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE greatest surprise that some men will have in Heaven will be the astonishment on the faces of their wives at seeing them there.

If we really develop through pain and suffering, the woman who is married to a brute, an egotist, a Don Juan, or a parlor wit, must be spiritually ready for Heaven long before she dies.

At 22, a girl is torn between the impulse to snap up what's offered in the husband market, and the hunch to wait until the "second crop" appears, and see if she can do better.

Marriage is a mirror in which you will some day see yourself as your husband sees you. For the sake of your soul, choose a flattering one!

A woman who could not bear to think of unraveling her wedding gown for at least a year, will start right in trying to "make over" her husband the day after she gets back from the honeymoon trip.

Infatuation is like hay fever, something which seizes you violently and unaccountably every summer, but which mercifully disappears and is forgotten before Christmas.

It isn't until after the smash-up that a man begins to wonder if the "Stop" signal in a woman's eye may not really have meant something, after all.

Words of Wisdom

—Montaigne.

—Palmerston.

There is a chord in every heart that has a sigh in it if touched aright.
—Ouida.

Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends, for it is one of God's best gifts. It involves many things, but above all, the power of going out of one's self, and appreciating whatever is noble and loving in the other.
—Hughes.

It hath often been said that it is not death, but dying, which is terrible.
—Fielding.

Thou know'st 'tis common, all that live must die,
Passing through nature to eternity.

Was Joshua There?

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I'M getting dizzy," said the Earth, "and I'm going to stop turning around."

"Oh, don't do that!" cried the Ocean and the Atmosphere. "Think what will become of us."

"No matter about you, I stop!" said the Earth in a relentless tone. "But think of all the people! And the big buildings!"

"Hang the people and the big buildings. They are a burden to me. I'm overwhelmed with their bones."

"But, for mercy's sake, we can't hang on if you stop."

"What of that? I've got this hunch, and I'm going to do it."

"Then, if you must stop, stop slowly. Oh, please!"

"No!" thundered the Earth. I'll stop suddenly, in the millionth part of a second. I am going to stop RIGHT NOW!"

There was a grinding, screeching, creaking, rocking and roaring noise, that filled the earth and the sky, and a shock that made the welkin tremble, while all the universe appeared to be collapsing.

The air tore away eastward in rags and tatters of the lacerated atmosphere, blowing off mountain pinnacles like trifling chimneys, ripping up great forests by the roots, and sweeping giant trees through the sky as if they were bits of straw from a grain field.

But the ocean! Along the Atlantic coast the waters fled eastward and disclosed the continental shelf and the dark verge of the volcanic abyss beyond it. On the Pacific side the ocean leaped upon the land, drowned the cities, plains and valleys, and scaled the flanks of the mountains with climbing billows and spouts of foam that dared the peaks.

Inertia, the most resistless giant of the material cosmos, was unchained, and stood unchecked. All the roaring winds were free, and "all the mighty floods were out." And what of the groaning, creaking, rending earth itself? The inertial Goliath held that, too, in his crushing grasp. The stress and strain of the suddenly arrested force of rotation was felt to the quivering center. Strata cracked, yielded, crumbled. Earthquakes darted like neuralgic spasms through all the veins of the planet.

"Oh, what have I done?" cried the tortured Earth. "What drunken folly made me stop? Why did I not know the fearful force that was sleeping in my smooth rotation? Why did not Nature teach me to yield it up harmlessly, slowly developing its matchless power for the betterment of these intellectual beings who dwelt with me so long, but whom I have now recklessly destroyed? Henceforth, I am but a slag, a wreck, like my long-lost child, the Moon."

But in the sweep in my dream that over the center of the Atlantic an aeroplane was smoothly circling in a still atmosphere at a great height, when the catastrophe occurred. Suddenly its pilot became aware of a terrible commotion below him. The surface of the ocean piled itself in immense billows chasing one another eastward. There was a percussion upon the air about him, and currents and whirlwinds formed, which called upon all his skill and judgment to enable him to live through the sudden storm. But the air did not leap upon him as it had done upon the suddenly arrested surface of the solid earth. He rode along with its general momentum of rotation as he had been doing before the globe beneath stopped turning. If he had been in contact with the globe starting its momentum, he, too, would have been hurled eastward with its destructive force when the rotation stopped. But he was in contact with nothing but the enveloping air, whose momentum he already shared. Thus only a Joshua could have had a chance of escape.

The Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SHE is stirred by the spirit of song,
She is touched by the tide's rhythmic measures,
Like a wind that can bear her along
Are the silver-sweet notes that she treasures.

She has found in sound's sweet the source
Of a joy that fails not nor decreases,
She is moved by harmonious force
Through a lifetime where song never ceases.

Though the hours would be thieves of her bliss
And would steal every pleasure life offers,
She can laugh as she mocks them with this—

From earth's discord; about her there lingers
An aura of love from her heart

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 26—"Ghost writing" has reached such startling proportions it threatens the entire American literary structure. Even established writers are suspected of having others do their stuff. Ghosting originated with baseball stars signing stuff written by sport writers.

Today they are whispering among the intellectuals that three successful short story writers and two novelists have quit writing under their own names altogether and are making bigger money "ghosting" for ambitious litterateurs with no talent but fat bank accounts.

Society women, merchant princes, bankers, doctors, lawyers and even the thief have had their writing waiths. A publishing expert is authority that 100 novels and text books and five slim volumes of verse were products of the ghoulish guild during the past year.

Nouveau riche wives aching for a touch of personal exploitation are juicy meat for the professional ghosters. They are willing to pay triple the price that would accrue from the advance and royalties of the average successful novel just to be in the limelight.

The recent ballyhooing of books in the manner of a three-ring circus—they are actually three-sheeted—has worked incalculable harm. Hair dressers, perfumers and such have been able to taint publications with publicity by having them "ghosted" and privately printed.

There are printing establishments with "dummy" publishing companies where one may have any book printed for a price. Book reviewers receive many books these days they immediately toss in the ash can. They see the hand of the spook and an honorable business becomes a racket.

Honest publishers are genuinely exercised because it casts a doubt on the real authorship of the new and conscientious author. Recently there were sent out engraved announcements from "a literary aid" society showing one could author an honest-to-goodness book for $3000.

Poetry, too, is becoming tainted in the commercialized madness. Those who can link up a safety razor, a rubber heel or arch preserver with some devastating quantrain for radio audiences can get a check that would require a year's effort in the usual way. One "radio poet" is paid $15,000 a year. Before this job he never made more than $20 a week writing poetry.

A subway guard, revived after being smacked abadaba by an outraged spectator, denied he kicked a lady as his assailant claimed. "I only shoved her onto the express train with my foot," he explained in high heat.

But the Woolworth in Manhattan manners is reported from a speakeasy where a gentleman sat down uninvited at a table occupied by several ladies. "Do you mind," he asked archly, "if I take off my hat?"

In the same speakeasy is a scantily clad girl who shivers a mean shimmy while furiously smoking a cigarette. One of the old timers from back yonder sat at ringside table looking bored and stifling an occasional yawn. "That's pretty hot," ventured his city escort. "Not," he replied, "if you live with an aunt who smokes a pipe and has the palsy."

Also there was a gentleman in evening clothes sprawled across a table with his head in his hands. A waiter was asked the trouble. "Just pickled and thinking big thoughts," he replied.

Watterson Rothacker has made three unsuccessful efforts to retire from executive jobs in the film industry before reaching 45. Each time he is thrust back into the game by some combination of circumstances. The other day, after turning down two important jobs, he stood across the street watching the straggling line in front of a 6th avenue employment agency. "Lucky birds," he sighed. "They have to hunt work."

From an editorial: "The daily columnist faces an eclipse. He was a fad and joins the bicycle and other forms of amusement that have had their day."

That crash was a certain countenance falling!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

EVERY now and then I have a blue day—
Remembering old times—
Grieving for those who have gone—
Thinking of the mistakes I've made—
Of the suffering I've had—
Getting myself all gummed up with self pity—
Sorry for myself because I'm human and have to pay such a big price for feeling things—
Things like love and ambition and pride and remorse—
"Wish I was a cow," I say to myself. "Cows don't feel much of anything. They have all the luck. It isn't fair to have to suffer so, just because you have a heart. If I hadn't loved—If I hadn't hoped—life couldn't have hurt me so. Feelings are too expensive—it's better to be a cow—"

Every once in a while I get thinking like that—

But I was jolted out of it today. I had to go and report a murder trial.

The accused was a woman. A young, healthy woman with a body like yours or mine. A placid, plump body that obviously liked to eat and sleep and dance and lie in the sun.

Just such a body as I've wanted to have when I've been sick—

And with it went just such a face as I've wanted to have when I've been blue—

A FACE ON WHICH NO FEELINGS WHATEVER WERE WRITTEN.

Things had happened to that body. Travel had happened to it. Marriage had happened to it. Childbirth had happened to it. Love and friendship, of a sort, had happened to it. Hate and persecution and now the fury of the law had happened to it. But of all that there was no record on the face. It had moved, seemingly, through the normal cycle of life, but it had moved only as a healthy animal moves. Something was lacking in the mechanism that should record emotion.

THAT FACE HAD EXISTED BUT IT HAD NEVER REALLY LIVED.

I had been resentful because I had had to pay a price for love and ambition—

And Sadie had never had to pay a price because it had never really known love or ambition—

It had missed most of the pain of life—

But it had also missed all the glory and beauty and ecstasy!

I had scars—

But she was blank.

And suddenly, looking on that dreadful blankness, I thanked God for my scars—I THANKED GOD I COULD FEEL!

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE Central Park Casino is now open to the public at $10 a plate.

Over 600 guests were personally selected by Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., to attend the opening night at $10 a napkin.

We knew Anthony well in the old days. We used to bathe in the same ocean.

While Tony, Jr., was using the Atlantic up at Newport we were chumming with him further south at Coney Island.

However, he forgot to invite us to the opening of the casino at $10 a bib.

We would have refused anyway. We refuse to pay for our omelets before the hen lays the egg.

And the judge only fines you $2 for trespassing.

We understand that the public has carte blanche at the casino, provided they are in Mr. Biddle's set.

The definition of carte blanche is also simple. Every time Mr. Biddle sees a cart, he blanches.

We warn Mr. Biddle, Jr., that Bugs Baer, the Third, is going to call on him the first time he scuffles the 10 bills together.

Even if Mr. Biddle, Jr., throws us out we will still be in the park.
